Schoolboy Tracksters Start Invasion of City

1,300 TO VIE FOR LAURELS IN TRACK CLASSIC

Fair Weather Is Forecast for 12th Annual Mansfield Relays Tomorrow.

111 SCHOOLS ENTERED

Schenectady Squad First to Arrive; Others Come in Tonight, in Morning.

Schoolboy track and field athletes who will show their wares in the 12th annual renewal of the Mansfield Relays at Stadium field tomorrow started their trek into the city today.

The first contingent of thinclads to converge on Mansfield was due early this afternoon, and the invasion of the out-of-state visitors is expected to continue in a steady stream until late tonight.

Schenectady Arrives.

Schenectady, N. Y., Nott Terrace high, with a squad of 15 athletes, was expected shortly after noon and planned a brief workout to shake out the kinks at the field on arrival.

Meanwhile, Director Harry Mehock and other Relays officials made last-minute check-ups today to make sure that everything is set for the interscholastic meet, the biggest of its kind in the country.

Promised the co-operation of the weatherman, who forecasts warm weather, Mansfield today looked forward to the greatest edition of the Relays in the 12-year history of the event.

A record total of over 1,300 athletes representing 111 high, junior and grade schools from six states, Ohio, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky, is entered in the elimination that will attract the interest of the entire wid-west.

There are indications that a new

Copper Goes To Private Home Today

In Court Custody for 60 Days, Declares Judge; Suspension Asked.

Patrolman Harry Copper, who has been held "mentally ill" by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson today was to be taken to a private home outside the city where he will remain under the supervision of the court for the next 60 days.

After a conference this morning in the office of Police Chief Meade K. Bates and Mrs. Copper, Judge Anderson said that plans had been worked out to put the officer in a private home "at least 100 miles" from Mansfield.

While it was not definitely decided where Copper would be placed, Anderson said it would be in one of two places that the group had under consideration.

Copper will be taken to whichever place is finally decided on by city and county officers, Anderson said

Bates Urges Suspension.

Meanwhile Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert, received a written recommendation from Bates that Copper be suspended from the force. He added however, that city officials could still not serve any suspension papers on the officer until a guardian had been appointed.

Judge Anderson pointed out that no application for a hearing on the matter of guardianship had yet been filed although city officials had discussed the matter.

Bates' recommended that Copper be suspended for "intoxication while off duty, conduct unbecoming an officer, mental incompetency and conduct subversive to the godo order and discipline of the force."

The chief pointed out in his letter to Styert that the charges were sustained in statements taken from fellow officers who took Copper into custody last Sunday.

Bates said he based his recommendations on Copper's actions Easter Sunday when he "threatened his family and wife and fired at her with his pistol when she ran from the house."

His recommendation, however, did not set any specific period for suspension, and Bates answered questions on this phase of the situation was a terse "no comment."

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said he would insist on permanent suspension.

JAPS PAY U. S.

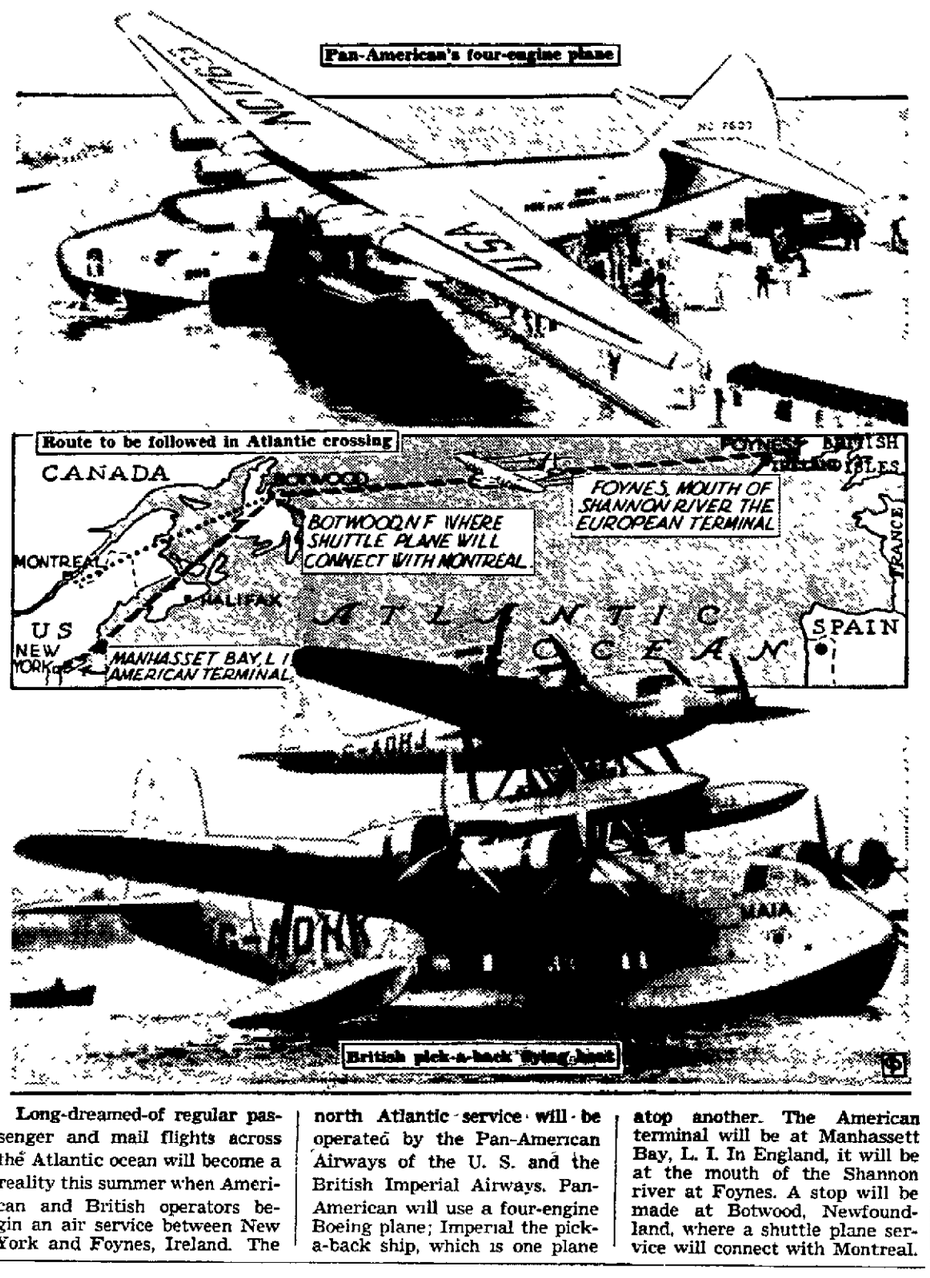
Japan Settles Panay Bombing With $2,214,007.36 Check.

TOKYO—(AP)—The Panay case—the bombing of the United States river gunboat Panay and the Standard Oil vessels during the siege of Nanking—was officially closed today when Japan paid $2,214,007 36 as full indemnity.

The aerial attack on Dec. 12 up the Yangtze river from the former Chinese capital, was one of the most surprising developments of the Chinese-Japanese war and seriously disturbed relations between the United States and Japan.

The foreign office itemization of the payment showed the Standard Vacuum Oil company received more than half of the payment, $1,287.942.

U. S., Britain Set For Ocean Air Service



Long-dreamed-of regular passenger and mail flights across the Atlantic ocean will become a reality this summer when American and British operators begin an air service between New York and Foynes, Ireland. The north Atlantic service will be operated by the Pan-American Airways of the U. S. and the British Imperial Airways. Pan-American will use a four-engine Boeing plane; Imperial the pick-a-back ship, which is one plane atop another. The American terminal will be at Manhassett Bay, L. I. In England, it will be at the mouth of the Shannon river at Foynes. A stop will be made at Botwood, Newfoundland, where a shuttle plane service will connect with Montreal.

PLAN CALLS FOR 2 COUNTY LAKES

Wooddell Looks for Federal Aid to Create Recreation Spots Near Dams.

Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill dams in Richland county, two of the 14 that comprise the Muskingum conservancy project, are among the 11 flood control dams that may yet be turned to recreational purposes if plans to secure federal aid can be worked out.

State Conservation Commissioner Lawrence Wooddell pointed out today that two avenues to federal aid are open now that Ohio cannot levy the assessments necessary to make water playgrounds of the lakes which will result from the flood control project.

Plans of the state to carry out the recreational plans were blocked this week when the Ohio supreme court refused to review the lower courts' decision that the conservancy directors lacked the authority to spread a general levy of $1.500,000 on property in the district.

The original suit was brought in Stark county by a taxpayer to halt the general assessment, who contended that the laws governing

Dafoe Lashes Dionne In New Wrangle Over Quints

Challenges Attorney, Father to Prove He's Wasting Babies' Money and Stealing Their Affections.

(By International News Service)

BOSTON—Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, country doctor who presided at the birth of the Dionne quintuplets, today in an exclusive telephone interview with International News Service and the Boston Evening American, openly challenged Oliva Dionne and Attorney Henri St. Jacques, of Ottawa, to prove charges that he is wasting the babies' money or alienating their affections.

The venerable Callander, Ontario, physician indicated by his tone that his patience was finally exhausted by his numerous disputes with the parents of the children. This is the first time he has openly criticized "Papa" Dionne.

Health Impaired, Charge.

In a declaration containing five separate complaints against Dr Dafoe. Attorney Jacques charged that the health of the quintuplets had been impaired to satisfy Dr Dafoe's determination to please tourists, that they had been forced to learn English before mastering French and that Dr. Dafoe had been guilty of wanton waste of the children's money to assure himself of an elaborate headquarters and management staff, and that Dr. Dafoe had alienated the children's Settlement Imminent in Tram Strike at Columbus.

COLUMBUS — (INS)—Union representatives and Federal Conciliator John L. Conner were "hopeful" that the five-day street car strike would be settled today, while Ben W. Marr, president of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric company, did not appear confident of a settlement as he met with the strike committee and conciliators at 9 a. m.

"It's hard to say whether the strike will be settled today," Marr declared as the conference opened.

Conner appeared more optimistic about the outcome of the conference.

CRAFT REACHES MENACED SHIP

Crew Stranded as Ice Threatens To Crush Norwegian Vessel.

ST. JOHN, N. F.—(INS)—Smashing forward through ice-jammed seas, the Sealer Eagle radioed at noon today that she had reached the side of the Norwegian sealer Ora and was preparing to rescue the Norwegian craft's crew.

Those aboard the Ora decided to abandon ship when the inexorable pressure of the ice threatened to squeeze the small craft to splinters within a few hours.

FROST LIKELY

Mercury Skids Despite Bright Sun; Cloudy, Warmer Tomorrow.

The mercury continued to skid downward today, despite a bright sun, and the weatherman said there was a likelihood of frost tonight.

Tomorrow will be cloudy, he predicted, but slightly warmer.

At noon today, Observer Otto Sprunger reported a reading of 51 degrees, a gain of only five from last night's low of 46.

HEAR DEMAND FOR SPECIAL RELIEF PARLEY

City, County Officials Told Legislature Should Meet at Once on Problem.

MEETING IN COLUMBUS

Canton and Cleveland Mayors Criticize Davey, Call for Barrage of Telegrams.

Four Mansfield and Richland county officials who were in Columbus today to meet with Gov. Martin L. Davey and State Treasurer Joseph T. Ferguson on the relief problem, heard Mayor James Seccombe of Canton and Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland call for an immediate session of the legislature to work out an adequate relief plan.

Attending the sessions from here are City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, County Auditor Norman L Wolfe; C L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners, and County Engineer Howard C. Sword Urge Immediate Action.

Mayor Seccombe urged local officials to "go back home and turn loose a barrage of telegrams to get action."

Supporting him was Mayor Burton who added that "there is no excuse for the governor's delay."

"He was warned March 17 that this was impending," Burton said. "I've told him it was necessary to get the legislature in session so funds could be available by May 1."

He pointed out that Cleveland would be out of relief funds by April 30 and would need about $6,500,000 for the rest of the year.

Emphasize Needs.

Other speakers representing the Ohio League of Municipalities emphasized that their relief funds were low or exhausted and urged prompt action by the state to provide relief funds

A commitee of city officials and legislative leaders was to meet with Gov. Davey today to discuss a new relief plan which would provide $15,000,000 for the rest of the year.

In a talk in Mansfield about two weeks ago, Gov. Davey said the legislature would be called into session to enact a relief measure after the cities have decided on a program.

Speaking at a session last night, O. P. Van Schoik, chief state relief examiner, asserted that the establishment of state-wide relief standards is needed.

BRIDE, 12, HELD

Delaware Acts to Dissolve Marriage to Man, 37.

WILMINGTON, Del—(AP)—The walls of the Wilmington detention home stood today between 12-year-old Almira Mae McChesney and her 37-year-old fisherman husband of nine days

The slender, dark-haired girl, who says "I love Sam and Sam loves me," was held on a juvenile court order, issued on complaint of her mother last February and still pending.

Judge Earle R. Willey, who issued the order, said the mother, Mrs George Walls, told the court her daughter stayed out nights without consent and was incorrigible. He said the marriage would be dissolved.

State police took the girl into custody last night as she, her husband, Samuel, and members of his family ate the first dinner Almira ever cooked.

City Chips In to Pay Man's Fine

OKLAHOMA CITY — (AP) — Pennies totaling $17.75 were donated by citizens to pay the $6 fine of J. Haskel Bethurum, arrested when he asked two policemen why they were driving their patrol car without lights.

A newspaper invited "anyone who ever sassed a policeman, ever wanted to sass a policeman or ever has been sassed by a policeman" to contribute.

City officials, even the judge who fined Bethurum, joined in.

CITY TO DRESS UP PARK FOR PIONEER DAY

6-Foot Stockades to Be Built Around Cannons; Statues, Monuments Painted.

Central park, around which ceremonies will center in the Richland county observance of "Pioneer Day" May 2, will become a replica of an early pioneer fort for the celebration.

City park employes, under the direction of Jacob Rahm, parks superintendent, were busy today dressing up the park for the celebration. Monuments, statues and the old bell were being painted, the grounds put in shape, and later six-foot stockades will be built around the cannons on the four sides of the park.

With plans for the Northwest Territory celebration rapidly taking form, Mayor Claude M. Hunter today issued a proclamation designating the week of April 26 to May 3 as "Pioneer Week" and Monday, May 2 as "Pioneer Day."

Invite Officials.

Invitations have gone out to a number of prominent Ohioans to attend the celebration. They will be asked to speak from a stand at the west side of Central park.

Among those who have been invited to participate in the observance are U. S Senator Vic Donahey, former Governor George White of Marietta, who was one of the originators of the pioneer celebration plan; Congressman William A Ashbrook, of Johnstown; Edward J Mildren, Marietta, state director of the celebration commission; State Senator W F. Hurley of Lorain and Ralph Lutz of Lexington, Richland county representative to the general assembly.

The program of speeches, band music and singing at the park will follow a huge parade through the city Monday afternoon, May 2, in which schools, civic and service organizations and business and industrial firms will participate.

The parade, expected to be one of the longest ever seen in Mansfield will be headed by the federal ox wagon caravan which is touring Ohio and other states formed from the original Northwest Ter-

PLAN $1,705,000 ROAD PROJECT

Jaster Describes Super-Highway Crossing Job In Cleveland.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—John J. Jaster, jr., state highway director, announced today plans for a $1,705 000 super-highway crossing project at the intersection of U. S. route 21 and state route 17 in Cleveland's Maple Heights district

A modern system of ramps which would permit motorists to enter one highway from the other without a direct intersection is contemplated. It will be the first of its kind in Ohio.

Jaster said bids would be opened soon and that engineers hoped to start construction by July 1.

2 MEN, WOMAN SLAIN, POLICE SEIZE KILLER

Maid, Custodian, Engineer of Fashionable Shaker Heights Apartment Murdered.

GRUDGE MOTIVE SEEN

'Hope They're All Dead,' Says Gun Wielder After Capture in Wild Auto Chase.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Two men and a woman were slain today by a 43-year-old colored man, who police said apparently suddenly went insane.

Police listed the victims as: Hans Getslaff, 33, and Mitchell Paser, and Lily Traylor, about 24, a colored maid in a Shaker Heights home.

All of the victims were killed by shots from a revolver.

The two men were killed in a fashionable Shaker Heights apartment within 15 minutes after the woman was thrown from the slayer's car near the apartment building.

Captured In Chase.

Police captured the slayer after an 80-mile-an-hour automobile chase which ended in a gasoline filling station lot.

"I hope they're all dead," police quoted the man as saying. He was booked as William Peters.

Police said Peters' wife, Annabelle, had been an elevator operator at the apartment house for the last 14 years but was discharged last week. They believed the shooting had grown out of Peters' resentment of the discharge.

Getslaff was the building custodian and Paser the engineer.

George Toy, a chauffeur employed by a resident of the apartment, said he saw Peters walk over to Paser outside the building and mutter "he was responsible too.

"I'm a gentleman, I'm not going to shoot everybody. I'm just going after the big shots and I got to get five more," Dan Gal, another chauffeur, quoted Peters as saying after Paser had been killed.

Shot In Back.

Peters then encountered Getslaff on the first floor. Witnesses said he fired three shots as Getslaff ran up the stairs, one shot hitting him in the back.

Getslaff ran into the apartment kitchen of Harry V. Korner, where Korner seized a chair and broke it over Peters' head. Peters fired one more shot at Getslaff and ran down the rear stairway pursued by Korner.

Police Capt. Philip Grotenrath said Peters surrendered without attempting to use his gun again.

WINS ACQUITTAL

Beer Parlor Owner Freed by Jury in Probate Court.

Deliberating an hour, a special jury in probate court late yesterday acquitted Charles Drye, 30, colored, proprietor of Bun's Place, 87 East Sixth street, of a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors by selling them beer.

The acquittal verdict, read by C. A. McKinley, common pleas court assignment clerk, brought applause from a group of the defendant's friends who jammed the courtroom throughout the day.

Drye, who had been accused of selling beer to two colored girls and a boy under 18 years of age, was defended by Atty. George W. Biddle who brought seven witnesses into the courtroom to testify. The state presented five witnesses

Biddle argued that Drye could not be convicted on a delinquency count unless it was proved that the minors purchased the beer at his establishment and consumed it there.

The state's case was handled by Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Assistant Prosecutor Harold T. Lutz Probate Judge C. J. Anderson presided.

League Wants Duffy To Demand Funds For Campaign Quiz.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The Ohio League of Women Voters wrote Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy today urging that he ask the board of control to finance an investigation of reported campaign fund assessments on civil service employes in the state government.

The league's letter answered Duffy's assertion that his office had no appropriation or personnel to undertake such an investigation.

First Air Mail Flight From Mansfield Will Mark National Celebration Here

Trip Set for May 19 Part of National Air Mail Week Observance.

Air mail will be flown directly from Mansfield for the first time as a part of the city's celebration of National Air Mail Week, May 15-21, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said today.

The flight, tentatively set for May 19, will be a symbol of the development of the city from the time the old log blockhouse in the square providde refuge from the Indians to the present motorized and streamlined era.

The historic log blockhouse also will play a part in the city's observance It will occupy a prominent part of special cachet stamp that will identify all air mail sent out of Mansfield that week.

A special cachet shown above will be used to cancel all air mail sent out of Mansfield during the week of May 15-21 as a part of the city's observance of National Air Mail Week.

The cachet, about two inches square, is headed by the words,

Special Johnny Appleseed Cachet to Be Stamped on Outgoing Letters.

"National Air Mail Week, May 15-21, 1938." Below a facsimile of the old blockhouse which now stands in South park, will be the words, "Johnny Appleseed Area, Mansfield, Ohio."

On each side of the blockhouse are sketches of an apple tree, symbolic of the early orchards in Richland county planted by Johnny Appleseed, while linking Mansfield's early and current history is an airplane.

The cachet was designed by Miss Heeln Herring, art instructor at John Simpson Junior high school.

The national observance commemorates the 20th anniversary of th federal air mail service.

'Pioneer Week' Proclamation

MANSFIELD is uncommonly fortunate in being chosen for one of the key stops of the ox-team caravan Its presence here should be made a memorable event on its colorful trek through the original Northwest territory.

This opportunity for our citizens to participate in the celebration of the passage of the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 and the consequent establishment of the Northwest territory should not be taken casually, but should be greeted with patriotic enthusiasm as an occasion worthy of our best efforts and general support.

Today at a time when we are seeking for peace and social progress, and for inspiration and encouragement for the solution of our current perplexities, it is fitting that we turn our thoughts momentarily to the past and survey the sublime accomplishments of our pioneer forefathers. To review again the origin of our fundamental concepts of the "rights of men" as embodied in the social and political philosophy of those early Americans can result only in renewing our faith and confidence in democratic government.

With these thoughts in mind, I, Claude M. Hunter, mayor of Mansfield, do proclaim that period, starting April 26 and ending May 3, "Pioneer Week," and May 2, "Pioneer Celebration Day."

CHAPTER XIX.

"Six foot thick mostly, sir, but this window affair is cut in and there's not more than a four-foot thickness there."

"What's the size of the window?"

"Three foot high and six foot wide, sir. There's a seat inside, placed facing it to get the view. And there's this window, with a four-foot sill and the hedge jutting out beyond it on either side for a couple of feet. She says they were fighting just outside, but unless the man who had the pistol threw it in through the window after he had fired I don't see how it got to the same side of the hedge as Lady Colesborough, or how she picked it up."

Colonel Anstruther looked up sharply

"Is there any proof that there were two men on the other side of the hedge? Anything to substantiate Lady Colesborough's story of the fight?"

Inspector Boyce coughed.

"Dr Hammond says the pistol must have been at least a yard away from Sir Francis when the shot was fired There aren't any footprints There's nothing to show whether there was a fight. Lady Colesborough says this man who calls himself Zero was there, and she says he fired the shot, but there isn't anyone else that saw him, and we can't find anyone that heard or saw a car."

Colonel Anstruther said "Tcha!" and added, "What did you expect to find? People in Colebrook don't sit up at night counting cars, do they? I don't suppose anyone heard Mr. Somers' car either, did they?"

"Well, no, sir, they didn't."

"Well, then, what's the good of telling me nobody heard a car?"

"You asked if there was any evidence."

Colonel Anstruther made an explosive sound

"And there isn't any! I take it there's no doubt that the weapon used was Colesborough's own pistol."

"No doubt at all, sir. Sir Francis kept this pistol in a drawer of his writing-table—we found the drawer pulled out He'd got a license and all quite regular. Sturrock the butler says there was a pair of them, but we haven't been able to find the other. It may be up at the London house."

Colonel Anstruther went back to the statement with a snort.

He read aloud: "I picked up the pistol. I heard someone coming down the yew walk It was my cousin, Miss Hardwicke. She came up to the seat. She had a torch. She came round the seat to look out of the window. I dropped the pistol and ran to the right along the hedge. There is a way out into the rose garden there I went that way because I heard someone coming down the main walk and I was frightened I ran to the house and rang the alarm bell in the hall. It rings in the servants wing. I told them my husband had been shot. After that I fainted."

"This walk business," said Inspector Boyce—"I don't know if you've got it clear, Colonel Anstruther It's like a tunnel with the yews meeting over head. There's a long straight piece with the rose garden on either side of it, say fifty-yards, with a seat and a window at the end, and a cross-piece, say twenty yards, on either side with an exit at both ends Lady Colesborough went in down the main walk and came out on the right-hand side Miss Hardwicke came in by the main walk and out the same way Mr Somers came in by the main walk. It was him running in that Lady Colesborough heard And he says he went out by the exit on the left-hand-side and round outside the hedge to make sure of Sir Francis being dead Then, he says he came back to Miss Hardwicke and they both returned by the main walk to the house meeting the butler on the way Mr Somers then telephoned the police You've got their statements there."

And what were Mr Somers and Miss Hardwicke doing in the grounds of Cole Lester in the middle of the night? asked Colonel Anstruther

Inspector Boyce coughed

"Mr Somers says he drove Miss Hardwicke down because she asked him to He says he had never heard of Mr Zero but, as one of Mr Montagu Lushington's secretaries, he was naturally aware that an important document had been stolen He did not in any way connect the journey to Cole Lester with the stolen document

Miss Hardwicke says Lady Colesborough had confided in her that she was being blackmailed by someone she called Mr Zero She asked Mr Somers to drive her down to Cole Lester because she knew that Lady Colesborough was to meet this man at the window in the yew hedge between 12 and 1 o'clock that night in order to hand over to him a package of letters which she had taken from Sir Francis private safe She hoped by being present as a witness to frighten the blackmailer and induce him to leave Lady Colesborough alone In my opinion Miss Hardwicke is telling the truth If you'll turn to her statement, sir I believe you will agree it is convincing

Colonel Anstruther took up a paper and began to read aloud

I had just got into the tunnel and began to grope my way along it I had a torch, but I did not want to use it, so I was going slowly I thought I ought to be able to see the window All at once I did see it because there was a flash of light on the other side of the hedge And I heard someone calling out There was a lot of noise I can't say whether there were two people shouting or only one. It was just a sudden noise which I wasn't expecting I didn't hear any words only this noise and then a shot After the shot I heard my cousin scream I ran towards the window, and when I got to the seat I remembered my torch and turned it on. Lady Colesborough was standing there with the pistol in her hand. I saw the pistol drop. I looked out of the window and saw Sir Francis lying on the grass. He was about three yards away from the window. I thought he was dead. I heard someone running towards me down the tunnel. I picked up the pistol and wiped it on my dress. Mr. Somers came—"

"Wiped the pistol, did she?" Colonel Anstruther rapped out. "Any finger-marks left?"

"Nothing to speak of, sir She'd held it in a bit of her dress and wiped it as well as she could. It's a terrible pity. We'd have known for certain whether this Zero was really there if she hadn't, and if we'd got a good print we might have roped him in"

"If you had wings you might fly'" growled Colonel Anstruther. "Lord, man—what sort of prints do you think you'd have got? If Lady Colesborough is telling the truth, there were four of them who handled it — Colesborough, Zero, herself, and Miss Hardwicke. You'd have been lucky to have got one straight print"

"We need a bit of luck," said Inspector Boyce.

'Well, let's see if Lady Colesborough can supply it," snapped Colonel Anstruther. "Ask her to come in."

Sylvia Colesborough sat on one side of a blazing fire in the deep old-fashioned hearth in a leather-covered chair whose rich crimson threw up the gold of her hair and the pallor of her skin Colonel Anstruther, who had perforce to occupy the seat on the other side of the fire, was being more painfully reminded every moment of a brief and unpleasant period of service in the tropics His face was almost as red as the leather of his chair Even if the temperature had been some thirty degrees cooler, Sylvia's confidences might well have brought him to the verge of apoplexy With Inspector Boyce sitting at Francis Colesborough's writing-table and taking notes, she told the Chief Constable all about Mr. Zero from the first telephone call.

As he listened to her jumbled story Colonel Anstruther anticipated a difficult time but he began to question her.

"Now, Lady Colesborough, will you tell me this. When did this Mr. Zero give you the instructions about taking the envelope from Mr. Montagu Lushington's despatch-case?"

"Well, it was on the Saturday—Saturday last week—"

"Yes, yes, but what time?"

Sylvia looked vague.

"Well, I'd had my tea—and I hadn't started for Wellings—because, of course, he couldn't have rung me up if I'd started, could he? So I expect it was about five," said Sylvia with a sigh.

* * *

Inspector Boyce made a note of the time So did a quiet, non-descript little man with sandy hair who was standing by one of the closed windows. His name was Brook, and he represented the Home Office, but so unobtrusively that it was difficult to remember that he was there at all. Sometimes he stared upon the room and its three occupants, sometimes he made a note. He made one now.

Colonel Anstruther blinked

"And what time was it when you went into Mr Lushington's room and took the envelope?"

Sylvia leaned back again

"I expect it was about half past seven—or eight—but I don't think it could really have been as late as that, because we were dining at a quarter past eight—because of Francis, you know. He told me to say he was afraid he was going to be late, and he was—we were half way through the fish, so I expect it was about a quarter to eight really. You see, I waited till I heard the bath water running"

Colonel Anstruther's complexion took on a livelier ruby

"Bath water? Whose bath water?"

"Mr. Washington's"

"Colonel Anstruther failed to repress a snort He said in a military voice, "Lushington, madam—Lushington."

After an interval he proceeded.

"You say that you never saw Mr. Zero?"

"Oh, no. You see, it was always on the telephone or in the dark I talked with him."

"When you handed over the envelope which you had taken from Mr. Lushington — Lady Colesborough, you say it was dark and you did not see his face, but he took the envelope from you. Did you see his hand?"

"He had a glove on his hand," said Sylvia, unexpectedly lucid.

"What kind of a glove?"

"Oh, just a glove—the sort men wear"

"Did you notice at what height the hand was?"

Sylvia looked blank.

"Don't you see, Lady Colesborough, that if the man was tall, the hand which he put out to take the envelope would have been at a higher level then if he had been short? Come over here, Boyce, for a minute" He turned his head. "And, Mr. Brook—if you would be so good—"

Mansfield Awaits Invasion Of Athletes for Relays

Record Entry to Compete in 12th Running of Schoolboy Meet Saturday.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD was a little jittery today as it applied the final touches to preparations for the entertainment of a flock of visitors at Stadium field tomorrow.

Tomorrow is Relays day in Mansfield, and the city is ready to extend a hearty welcome to schoolboy athletes who will start streaming into these precincts before nightfall for the 12th annual renewal of the nation's most pretentious track and field circus.

More Color, Interest.

Combining more color, interest and enthusiasm than any interscholastic meet in the country, Director Harry Mehock's big track party that started on a meager scale 12 years ago promises to exceed even the fondest hopes of the founder at Stadium field tomorrow.

More schools, more athletes and more spectators are assured for the gigantic affair that will attract the attention of the entire mid-west.

Weather conditions are promising for tomorrow to provide a perfect setting for the athletic show, subordinate to none in achievement, and, with the track in perfect shape, a number of record-breaking feats are expected to be fashioned in the spectacle to get under way with the preliminaries at 10 a. m. The finals will start at 2 p. m.

Over 1,200 athletes will represent 85 schools of Ohio, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia in the classic tomorrow. These numbers constitute new records.

Counting the junior high and grade schools to compete in special relay races, the teams to be on display tomorrow number 111, with over 1,300 athletes.

Defends Relays Crown.

Sandusky, which has won the championship two years in a row, will return tomorrow to defend the title, but it is not a popular choice to repeat. Sandusky has been hit hard by graduation.

This year will mark the first time in the history of the Relays that it will be staged without an outstanding favorite.

Bracketed as outstanding Ohio contenders this year are five Cleveland schools, Central, Collinwood, Rhodes, Lincoln and West Tech, upstate indoor champion; Toledo Scott and Sandusky, with Mansfield standing an outside chance of upsetting the dope in a tight race for points.

Out-of-state schools which loom as dangerous threats to the dominion of Ohio in the Relays are Erie East and Strong Vincent and Canonsburg of Pennsylvania, River Rouge, Mich., Huntington, W. Va., Newport, Ky., and Nott Terrace of Schenectady, N. Y.

A galaxy of prominent scholastic stars will be paraded at the high school field tomorrow. Included among the visiting luminaries are James Callista of Erie Strong Vincent, Charles Schmeling of Saginaw Eastern, Howard Leahy of Cleveland East Tech, Howard Carmany of Cleveland Collinwood, Joe and John Saunders of Glendale, Bob Farrow of Columbus South, Joe Rybacki of Canonsburg, John Repelewski of Erie Academy, John Halko of Schenectady, Wayne Witoskor of Canonsburg, Orv Brelsford of Birmingham and Casey Rish of Cleveland East.

Mansfield Threats.

Two of Mansfield high's major threats in the individual events are John Linta, defending champion in the pole vault, and Elmer Dials, javelin specialist.

So many athletes have been entered that it will be necessary to run a number of track events in heats against time.

For instance, 113 athletes are entered in the mile run, 108 in the 220-yard dash, 103 in the 880-yard run, 102 in each the 440-yard dash and Broad jump and 101 in the shot put.

Ninety-six will run in the 100-yard dash trials, 96 will also compete in the discuss, 91 in the high jump, 79 in the low hurdles, 64 in the pole vault, and 21 in the javelin

In the relay events, 45 teams are entered in the mile, 36 in the half mile 32 in each the medley and two-mile and 19 in the high shuttle.

Special Events.

The special events will include an 880-yard race involving Ike Eisenhart who won the state championship as a member of the Columbus North team last year, and Bill Price of Ohio State, and Clair Dodd, Nebraska state scholastic champion, and Ward Legg of Ashland college, junior high and grade school relays.

Possum Run Links To Open Saturday

The Possum Run golf course will open Saturday, Walter (Irish) McGee, new operator of the club, announced today.

A crew of six men has been working on the course for over a week, and the layout is in good condition.

McGee also announced the appointment of Jimmy Stout, widely known Mansfield golfing star, as pro, and Frank Ryan, former assistant greenskeeper at Westbrook, as greenskeeper. Ryan has been associated with the golf business for about 10 years, McGee said.

No radical changes will be made on the course, but the clubhouse has been renovated.

Hurls No-hit Game In Debut

Dale McKinley Blanks Foe, 7-0, in Inaugural.

Dale McKinley, ace pitcher of the Musille softball club, was in mid-season form for the first game of the season.

Making his seasonal debut yesterday, McKinley hurled a six-inning no-hit, no-run game to lead the Musille team to a 7 to 0 victory over the East Side Nite club. The game was halted at the end of the sixth by rain

Not one man reached first as McKinley set the East Siders down in order. He whiffed 12 men.

Another feature of the game was Pete Schadek's home run with the bases loaded in the sixth inning.

Heads Grapple Show Monday

Clingman, Grubmyer Tangle in Armory Ring.

Otis Clingman, who impressed Mansfield followers of catch-as-catch-can with his sizzling draw against Jack Claybourn last week, has been signed to appear in the main event of Monday's mat program in the Armory. He will meet a newcomer to these parts Gorilla Grubmyer of Chicago

In the rougher circles of the light-heavyweight division, Gorilla Grubmyer stands head and shoulders above the would-be villains.

Grubmyer and Clingman have been signed to wrestle for two falls, with a time limit of 90 minutes, headlining a three-bout card

The bar is still down to the women, and members of the feminine sex will be admitted free of charge if accompanied by escorts

Check Up on Defending Relays Champion's Legs

The photos above show James Callista, Erie, Pa., Strong Vincent sprint star, and his coach, "Red" Cochrane, former Akron university football and track star, checking up on the young running ace's legs for the Mansfield Relays to be run at Stadium field Saturday. Callista, who is the defending champion in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, suffered an ankle injury in a skating mishap last winter, but the injured member has responded to treatment. The picture at the right shows Callista giving the ankle a good workout. Callista was named on the national all-high school team last spring.

Mansfield's Definitely Out Of Ohio State League — Smith

PRESIDENT HARRY SMITH of Ohio State Baseball league said today six cities were in prospect for the 1938 loop, which will open the season May 18, and Mansfield is not one of them.

Tiffin, Findlay and Fostoria are "ready to go," Smith said, while Galion is making ready and Marion and Fremont are scheduled to decide definitely on franchises by May 2, when a meeting is to be held at Galion.

League officials, meeting here yesterday, said Mansfield and Norwalk, formerly prospective entries, definitely were out.

Roy Stout of Marion said that city had a tentative promise of sponsorship from the Indianapolis club of the American association. Smith said Galion planned an independent entry this year.

Smith added that the Tiffin Mudhens again would play with Detroit Tigers' support, Fostoria with the aid of the St. Louis Cardinals, Fremont sponsored by the Cincinnati Reds and Findlay by the St. Louis Browns.

Lucas Suffers First Defeat

BUTLER — A one-run rally in the last of the eighth inning gave the Butler high Bulldogs a 6 to 5 decision over Lucas high's erstwhile undefeated baseball club here yesterday. It was Lucas' first defeat in 12 games.

Butler shot into the lead in the opening frame with a three-run spree, but Lucas came back to knot the score at 4-all and again at 5-all, before bowing out of the picture. Oswalt, Lucas pitcher, was wild, issuing 12 bases on balls.

Boals collected a triple, double and single in three official times at the plate.

Dolce, Miller Hold Spotlight in Second Round of J. A. C. Tourney at Y.

By CHARLES MARTIN

A 99-POUND package of dynamite captured the fancy of the fans in the Junior Association of Commerce A. A. U. boxing tournament at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

That package was in the form of slender, dark-haired Frankie Dolce, clever Crestline boy.

This youngster stole the second-round program with a splendid exhibition of ring generalship and scientific boxing to win two bouts, one on a decision and the other on a technical knockout.

Beats Marionite.

Dolce appeared in the second bout of the evening before a near-capacity crowd to take the decision over Robert Messinger, 102, of Marion. The Crestline youth possesed a lightning-like left jab that had his opponent baffled.

And then Frankie came back near the end of the card to win the technical knockout over Jim Dewberry, 107, of the Friendly House. Dolce's left was working beautifully, and after one minute and 40 seconds of the second round Dewberry stepped into a short, hard left to the jaw and it was all over. The Mansfield youth's seconds tossed in the towel.

One other leather slinger captured two bouts on last night's interesting program. It was "Curley" Miller, Mansfield lightweight, who advanced to the finals by winning a pair.

Miller, a protege of Jimmy Wilde, scored a technical knockout over Ed Highman, 133, of Ashland, in one minute and 52 seconds of the third round. The Mansfielder, who spotted his rival a four-pound weight advantage, had Highman groggy several times but failed to land a knockout punch.

Takes Decision.

Miller then came back to take a decision over Nick Monasa, 133, of Tiffin, in the final bout of the evening. Miller located his target with regularity in the third to win the decision of the judges, Paul Eloit, Henry Them and Ray Morgan.

"Curley" will now meet Beau-

Whitehill Also Stingy With Hits in 4-3 Victory

Veteran Gives Up 4 Bingles in Eight Innings as Tribe Stops Browns.

DETROIT—(INS)—Winners of a 3 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns in Cleveland yesterday, the Indians came here today to start their first road series against the Tigers. Mel Harder and Tommy Bridges were the probable pitchers.

The Indians yesterday conquered their old jinx, Vito Tamulis, but it took a little miraculous fielding and some last minute fireworks to do it. Earl Whitehill, the veteran southpaw, was the winning pitcher, allowing the Browns but four hits before he was removed for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Tamulis Hit Hard.

Tamulis was hit hard, but only in the second, when he walked in a run, and the eighth, when Cleveland scored three runs to win, were the Indians able to hit when it counted.

Tom Heath, St. Louis catcher, tied the game up in the seventh when he looped a long one over the wall for a homer, and the Browns went ahead in the eighth when Frankie Pytlak's bad throw to first sent George McQuinn to second, and he scored on an infield out and a long fly.

In their half of the eighth the Tribe scored three times to win the ball game. Hal Trosky doubled, Ken Keltner beat out a bunt, Pytlak sent Trosky home with a two-bagger, and Jeff Heath, pinch hitting for John Kroner, who first was announced as hitter for Whitehill, got an intentional pass. Lyn Lary then won the ball game with a double that sent Keltner and Pytlak home.

Lary Saves Game.

Lary then proceeded to save the game with a bare-handed pickup for a force-out at third after a bad throw by Willis Hudlin, relief pitcher, had allowed another Brown run to be scored. Julius Solters got a round of applause when he went to the fence for a running, one-handed catch of Harland Clift's long drive that had homer written all over it.

FIGHTERS ADVANCE

ford Glover in the finals Tuesday and there is considerable speculation as to whether Glover can keep his brilliant record clean.

Glover of the Friendly house got by last night with a technical knockout over John Emerson, 129, of Lexington, in the second round, but his victory was none too impressive. Emerson stood toe to toe with the touted Settlement slugger and at times had Glover worried.

Tom Clemens, 113, another Friendly House product, moved along to the finals last night by taking a decision from John Spicer, 113, another Mansfield lad.

One of the McKinley brothers of Ashland made his initial appearance on last night's card. He was Melvin, 117, who won on a decision over Leo Smith, 116, also of Ashland. His brother, Ernie, drew another bye.

Wins Close Bout.

Mike Embreus, 147, of Ashland, came through with a close decision over Dwight Veutch, 147, a hard-punching Mt. Vernon product.

Dale Oyster, an Ashland heavyweight, won his way to the finals by decisioning Joe Colatruglio, 204, of Tiffin, in the only heavyweight affair on the card.

Sam Morgan and Bill Eichenger were the third men in the ring.

Five Friendly House youngsters put on a battle royal that had the fans roaring from the opening gong. Three of the lads were still on their feet when it was over.

The Canzol's probable starting lineup Sunday will be: Patterson, pitcher; Au, catcher; Willard Lockhart, Fred Buzard, Bob Bogantz, and Linta, infield, and Dent, Nick Zeigler, and N. Buzard, outfield The practice is scheduled at 4:30 p. m.

Greenberg Poles 500-Foot Home Run

CHICAGO—(AP)—Hank Greenberg held a place among baseball's modern men of might today so far as Comiskey park fans and records were concerned.

The Detroit first baseman's terrific home run on top the left field stands in the sixth inning of yesterday's White Sox game, which covered a distance approximately 500 feet, duplicated feats of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx.

Chicago May Get Title Go

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Promoter Mike Jacobs is considering Chicago "more seriously than ever" as the site for the Louis-Schmeling heavyweight title fight June 22, it was reported today.

He gave three reasons for this:

1. New violence in New York between Nazis and non-Nazis indicated increasing anti-Nazi sentiment in New York.

2. Leonard Hicks, manager of the Morrison hotel and chairman of the board of the Chicago Hotel association, conferred with Jacobs yesterday and indicated that the promoter could have Soldier Field for an "unexpectedly low" rental.

3. Governor Henry Horner of Illinois, Mayor Ed Kelly of Chicago and other Illinois officials and business men are working hard to get the bout while New Yorkers—aside from the boxing commission—are apathetic.

Wilkins Stars In Grid Win

Notre Dame defeated Purdue, 25 to 6, in a spring football game at Madison high Wednesday. The tilt was one of the series planned by Coach Al Fendrick in spring practice.

Bill Wilkins was the offensive star for the Irish, tallying all four touchdowns.

He scored the first after grabbing the opening kickoff and galloping 90 yards, added the second in the second period by intercepting a Purdue pass on the enemy's 30, and Doug DeNero shot two long passes to Wilkins for the other two scores in the final chapter.

Bill Heichel accounted for Purdue's only score in the first chapter on a line plunge.

Findlay, O., Hurler Brilliant in Debut

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK—(INS)—Step right this way folks and meet Forrest Pressnell, Findlay, Ohio's gift to the fans of Brooklyn.

You might as well become acquainted now for, judging by his work in shutting out the Phillies, 9-0, yesterday, you are going to hear him mentioned often this summer.

Now shutting out the Phillies at any time isn't the easiest stunt in the world, but blanking them in their own little bandbox, where a pop fly over the second baseman's head means a home run, indicates the young man must have something.

To be specific, what he has is a fast ball with a nice hop on it, good control, a fair curve and plenty of heart and poise. Pitchers have gone far on less equipment than that.

Loom Stronger.

It's a little too early to shout any praises over the Dodgers, but they do seem to have added lots of power this year and if they are going to get any such pitching as young Mr. Pressnell showed the Phillies, they may make things decidedly interesting for some of the more favored outfits.

And speaking of pitching, did you notice what those aged-in-the-wood vets, Hubbell and Derringer did to the Bees and Cubs? The old Giant maestro moved along in his usual smooth mid-season form to beat the Bees, 3-2, with some help from a Leiber home run, and Derringer trimmed Carleton and the Cubs, 6-2, while giving only four hits, one of which was a home run by Ken O'Dea.

First the Cards lost Dizzy Dean. Then they lost Joe Medwick via a sore back and yesterday they lost Pepper Martin and another ball game to the Pirates, 6-5. While the Pirates were slugging three hits to gain undisputed possession of the league lead, Pepper was on his way home to see his sick daughter.

At that, the Cards hardly miss those three more than the Yanks miss Joe DiMaggio. They got 13 hits off Johnny Marcum but wound up on the short end of 3-2 decision. And this despite the fact that the Sox got but three hits off Rookie Atley Donald. However, the young man dug his own grave with eight passes and a hit batter.

Finally Win One.

The Tigers finally won a game when Eldon Auker let the White Sox down with seven hits to win, 9-3. Incidentally, Hank Greenberg took advantage of DiMaggio's absence to belt another homer, and give the New York bomber something to shoot at when he swings into action in the next few days.

SEABURY TELLS HOW TO WORRY

See Center of Problem, Let Reason Control Thinking, New Yorker Says.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—(UP)—A plea for "constructive worrying" was voiced by Dr. David Seabury, of New York, in a lecture at Union college.

Ordinary worry, Dr. Seabury said, is caused by fear in control of the imagination. The way to avoid this habit, he advised, "is to seek the center of the problem, let the reason control the thinking processes, and think straight."

Warning against resisting or resenting difficulties, Dr. Seabury advocated forcing the mind to digest one's problems, thereby starting constructive action to correct or accept the situation.

He maintained that a negative attitude allows fear to enter the mind with the subsequent result that the mind becomes unable to cope with the problem.

"With fear intoxication," he explained, "the brain is partly coagulated or unfit for thinking."

Also, he added, problems should be correctly judged and handled according to their importance.

He concluded his lecture by advising:

"Never worry in bed; never worry when depressed; never worry until you know enough facts to do something constructive; never do another person's worrying; never worry about what someone else thinks you should do; never worry when angry; set a time limit on worry talks; never dump your worries on someone else."

Pushed By Lever, Device Clamps On Chains To Tires

ALTAMONT, N. Y.—(UP)—A device permitting a motorist to put on his chains "on the run" has been invented.

The inventor—F. J. Daley—said the device will be especially valuable on roads that have icy patches. The driver merely presses a lever on the dashboard and the chains are neatly wrapped around the wheels—without stopping or getting out of the machine.

The device consists of several telescopic rods, axes of which are the car's hub cap and axle. The rods project beyond the wheel and are parallel to it.

Sections of the chain are stretched between these rods, and are held out from the wheels far enough to clear the tire's surface.

Pressing the dashboard lever, the rods telescope, and the chain sections clamp down on the tire.

THEATER

THIS and that: Dick Powell once sang in the choir of First Baptist church in Little Rock, Ark., and now 17 members of the Ladies Aid are making two complete layettes for the coming Powell heir, one for a girl and one for a boy. Included is a small woolen vest that Dick wore when he was no bigger than this. . . . At a Hollywood theater where revivals of great silent pictures are being shown, Rudolph Valentino's "The Shiek" drew tremendous crowds as did "Birth of a Nation." But the biggest drawing card was "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," also a Valentino picture. . . . Shirley Temple's savings are invested so that even if some one marries her for her money they can't get it all. She will receive payments of her money at ten year intervals after she is 20. Everything she makes, outside of agent's fee and income tax, is invested by her father, who is a bank cashier. . . .

"Test Pilot"

A cast that will ring in the dollars on any exhibitor's cash register is found in "Test Pilot," opening at the Ohio tomorrow noon. The three stars, Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy and Myrna Loy have the support of Lionel Barrymore in a dramatic and very human story of the test pilots, the daring men who test out the airships before they are used by other flyers. Romance enters the life of the reckless test pilot Jim Lane, when his plane lands in a Kansas wheatfield and he runs smack into Myrna Loy. Any wheatfield would be romantic with Myrna Loy in it, and before the pilot can say Jack Robinson, he's eloping. Tracy, as Gunner, understanding companion of the two, follows their fortunes through the Thompson Trophy race, ending at Cleveland Air races, and after Jim has won the $10,000 and spent it. Action in the air and romance on land are combined in the picture.

Two-Fisted Action.

A picturesque locale, romantic background and plenty of two-fisted he-man action are features of "Heart of Arizona" the new Hopalong Cassidy adventure film which opens today at the Madison. As the popular Western hero, William Boyd befriends Natalie Moorhead when the sheriff tries to restrain her from returning to her ranch having served unjustly a five year prison term. Gallantly Cassidy and his men defie the sheriff to give the woman a break and a chance to return to her old life. In a thrilling battle Cassidy and his friends from the Bar 20 ranch round up a bunch of cattle rustlers. The cast is made up of the same players who have been in most of the Hoppy pictures.

"The Painted Trail."

At least three of Mansfield's theaters go Western for the last two days of the week, and the Majestic is one of them. One of its two features is "The Painted Trail" with Tom Keene. Setting out to get evidence on a gang of criminals and rustlers that operate around the Mexican border, he poses as the Pecos Kid, a famous bad man. Working with the gang he is caught himself but manages to escape. In a hand to hand encounter with the gang Keene and the Mexican officials emerge the victors—as always in a good Western. "Everybody's Doing It," another racketeer story, brings Sally Eilers and Preston Foster to the same bill.

"Wild Horse Rodeo."

With a suspense-filled plot laid in a colorful setting, the Three Mesquiteers come to the Ritz today and Satuday in "Wild Horse Rodeo," which presents the tribulations of three cowboys who, in order to save their ranch, make a deal with the manager of a big rodeo to produce a splendid wild horse for show purposes. The horse is found after some difficulties and puts the rodeo back on its financial feet. But the owner makes the mistake of offering $2,000 to anyone who can ride the horse. The three cow hands take a try at it, and one wins. "Wolves of the Sea," with Hobart Bosworth, a story of jungle islands and ships at sea, is the second feature.

When You Want To Give People BUYING Ideas

- Day in and day out, people turn eagerly to the newspaper. It is the primary source of their information regarding events of the day . . . of news and comment on the men and affairs that interest them and affect their well-being. It is the medium they consult for guidance in shopping for the things they buy.
- From this continuous contact with people in every station in life springs the newspaper's power as an advertising medium. It is the reason why in any effort to get public acceptance for an idea or product, the newspaper is basic to advertising.
- In Mansfield, the newspaper which for years has been an inseparable part of family and civic life is The News-Journal. Thus, through the columns of The News-Journal the advertiser can present his message in an atmosphere surcharged with the interest and confidence that gets store traffic and buying action . . . regardless of politics, season or general conditions.
- Whether you sell work shoes or objects d'art, simple necessities or luxury products, you can take maximum advantage of the opportunities the responsive Mansfield market offers by building your advertising plan around

OHIO'S TRAFFIC DEATHS DECLINE BY ONE THIRD

Fatalities for First Quarter of Year Show Decrease in Most Counties.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Death stayed closer to home in Ohio during the first three months of 1938 than in the corresponding period last year.

A survey today disclosed that traffic fatalities so far this year had dropped approximately one-third from the first quarter toll in 1937.

The decrease was attributed by enforcement agencies chiefly to concerted campaigns against speeding, reckless driving, and while intoxicated.

Reports indicated that most drastic action had been taken in population centers.

In Canton, seat of Stark county, the toll from Jan. 1 to April 15, 1938, was only three, compared with 18 for the corresponding period in 1937. The county toll for the same period was 10. Last year, 33 persons were killed.

The city of Cleveland, which inaugurated an accident-prevention campaign last fall, slashed its traffic fatalities from 72 in 1937 to 33 this year.

Hamilton county authorities credited closer supervision and severe court action for the reduction of its fatalities from 72 to 36.

Five Against 15.

Lorain county has chalked up only five deaths this year, compared with 15 for 1937. Clark county's toll this year was nine compared with 13 in the first three months of 1937.

Three persons have died in Marion county traffic accidents—all of them killed when automobiles struck trees. At this time last year, Marion county's toll was five dead.

Thousands of arrests for traffic violations were given credit by Franklin county authorities for cutting the death rate from 35 to 22. The city of Columbus' rate dropped from 25 to 13.

Only a few counties reported more traffic deaths this year than in 1937, and the increases were relatively small.

I. C. Plummer, chief of the state division of vital statistice, said figures for the first three months of 1938 were not available, but that during January and February, only 284 deaths in the state were caused by auto accidents, as compared with 421 for the same period in 1937.

An unusual record is that of Sandusky county, which has had no traffic fatalities this year, despite the fact that it is crossed by two heavily-traveled national highways. During the same period in 1937, 11 deaths occurred.

Lucas county, another population center, reduced its toll 50 per cent during the first 3½ months of 1938. Twenty persons were killed this year, compared with 40 in 1937.

A similar record was achieved in Mahoning county, which had a toll of 12 as compared with 25 last year.

Among the counties which reported an increase in deaths this year were Clinton, with one in 1938 as compared with none in 1937; Trumbull, 14, one more than 1937; Scioto, seven, two more than 1937; Fairfield, three, one more than 1937; Jefferson, nine, three more than 1937; Ross, four, one more than 1937.

Counties reporting a reduced toll included: Allen, three, three less than 1937; Richland, five, four less than 1937; Hocking, one, one less than 1937; Butler, 11, one less than 1937; Licking, two, seven less than 1937; Montgomery, 13, two less than 1937; Columbiana, four, 10 less than 1937.

Britain Acts To Halt Outbreak of Cattle Disease

LONDON —(U.P.)— Government officials are seeking to avert the worst outbreak of hoof and mouth disease in the history of the nation.

Minister of Apriculture W. S. Morrison banned the movement of cattle in all but six counties of England because of nine separate epidemics in scattered sections. The standstill order was the most drastic ever issued, affecting from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 animals.

The new outbreaks followed the costliest and most serious epidemic of hoof and mouth disease experienced in England in the last 15 years. Between Nov. 16, 1937 and March 25, 1938, there were 279 cases, involving the slaughter of 40,000 animals. Approximately $2,000,000 compensation was paid by the government.

RAILS FEATURE RALLY DURING QUIET TRADING

Advances Running to Point or More Well Distributed in Second Hour.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Rails took over the rallying leadership in today's stock market.

Although dealings were quiet from the start, gains running to a point or so were well distributed near the second hour.

Overnight announcement that the treasury would use its recently "desterilized" gold to pay off $50,000,000 of maturing bills weekly was in line with forecasts.

Commodities were slightly uneven. Export copper was given a lift.

Reviews, commenting on the inventory situation said store officials now are confident goods on hand would be cut to low levels by June, with merchants in a position to make prompt purchases upon any substantial pickup in retail demand.

SPECIAL RELIEF SESSION URGED

City, County Officials Hear Demand for Legislative Action at Meeting.

doing a good job of the administration of relief," he said. "Some are playing politics with relief, while others are influenced by personal prejudices and do not pursue business practices as efficient and economical as those of the county-wide relief agencies."

Richland county today had received a $7,220 allocation for relief from the state. The amount, which represents a $1,691 increase over last month, will be allocated by county commissioners to the county sub-divisions on the basis of their requirements.

The increase in the state allocation was due to a distribution of beer and admission taxes which may be used by the municipalities for relief purposes. The rest of the funds will come from sales tax receipts and is provided under a relief program set up early this year.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON—(AP)—(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—A few Boston houses reported a fair demand for fine territory wools yesterday but lower grades were mostly quiet. Good French combing lengths fine territory wools in original bags were bringing 63 to 65 cents, scoured basis. Offerings, however, were not being made freely at prices on the low side of this range. Choice original clips of territory wools running bulk staple combing lengths of the fine grades have moved at 66 to 68 cents, scoured basis in original bags.

DAFOE LASHES 'PAPA' DIONNE

Challenges Father, Attorney to Prove He's Wasting Babies' Money.

affection for their parents. Jacques demanded a government probe of the guardian's activities.

Dr. Dafoe charged that two women are behind the demands for a probe of his care of the quintuplets' health and the administration of their family affairs. Describing them as a former teacher and a former nurse at the Dafoe hospital, he said:

"It got so they were telling me what to do. You know, answering me back and I began to figure out that I was the boss so I undertook to fire them. The two ladies are mad because I told them to get through."

Dr. Dafoe said the two women, after they were discharged, talked with the girls' father and he voiced his objections "pretty strenuously."

Discharge of the two women was discussed at a meeting of the guardians, he said, adding:

"I sent several notices to Dionne to attend this meeting called to consider the charges which I had preferred against the women. He ignored them."

The doctor declared the children's parents have been misguided by outsiders anxious to "horn in" on something that is none of their business. He revealed that the five babies, now nearly four years old, have $600,000 in the bank in their own names. He said:

"I mean money left after payment of all expenses for the hospital and the administration and the care of them.

Bought Six Autos.

"Mr. Dionne is doing very well with his store across the street from the nursery. He is the one, and the only one, who benefits from the tourists they say I am so much interested in. No charge is made for tourists.

"Mr. Dionne has done so well that he has had six expensive automobiles in a year and a half. He trades his cars about once every two months. He has a beautiful car now."

Dr. Dafoe revealed he had personally seen to it that Mr. and Mrs. Dionne's income from contracts signed in behalf of the children had been increased from $100 a month to $300 a month since the birth of the last Dionne baby only three weeks ago.

"I, being a doctor, figured they might need more money when that last youngster came along so I suggested we increase the income for Oliva and his wife by $200 a month," he said.

Dr. Dafoe denied charges that the father and mother were not permitted to see the famous five babies. He declared the father and mother go to the hospital daily and the other children play with their famous sisters.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Builds Home—A building permit for the construction of a frame residence valued at $2,300 was issued at city hall yesterday to Mrs. Helen Dillon, 69 Ford avenue.

Shoot Saturday—A shoot of the Mansfield Muzzle-Loader Rifle club will be held at 1 p. m. Saturday at the Triangle Gun club grounds on Park avenue west road.

Addresses Club—Philip Wolfe, former safety-service director, addressed members of the Junior Hi-Y club at a meeting last night at the Y. M. C. A. on the subject of "Temperance."

Classes Postponed — All gym classes and meetings of club groups scheduled for Saturday at the Y. M. C. A. have been postponed until next week so that the "Y" building can be used as a downtown relays headquarters, Donald Cram, "Y" physical director, announced today.

K. of C. Pick Delegates — Two delegates and two alternates to the state K. of C. convention at Marietta May 22-23 were chosen by Mansfield Knights of Columbus at their meeting last night. Delegates are Joseph E. Kuebler, grand knight, and Raymond C. Straub. Alternates are John C. O'Donnell and John M. Woerth.

Attend Meeting—Six members of the Eagles lodge will go to Lima Sunday to attend a district meeting of the lodge for planning a membership campaign to start May 1. Those who will attend are C. F. Creedman, president, A. J. Egelsberg, secretary, George Reichert, Charles Hall, G. C. Estes and Clyde Ricketts, members of the campaign committee.

attendance mark will also be set tomorrow.

Records In Danger.

With the track in perfect condition, a number of new records are expected to be established by some of the outstanding athletes to compete here.

Headed by James Callista, All-America high school sprint star of Erie, Pa., Strong Vincent, the field will include a number of champions of the surrounding states.

Sandusky will return tomorrow to defend the championship it has won the last two years, but it is doubted whether the Blue Streaks can repeat. The team that won the title last year was wrecked by graduation.

Cleveland Central, Collinwood, Rhodes, West Tech, East and East Tech, and Toledo Scott, a former champion, loom as the outstanding Ohio contenders.

Out-of-State Threats.

Threatening the domination of Ohio schools will be Canonsburg and East and Strong Vincent of Erie, Pa., River Rouge, Mich., Huntington, W. Va., Nott Terrace of Schenectady, N. Y., and Newport, Ky..

As a special attraction, an 880-yard run featuring Ike Eisenhart, 1937 state scholastic champion, and Bill Pierce, Ohio State freshmen, Clair Dodd, holder of the Nebraska state scholastic half mile record, and Ward Legg of Ashland college will be staged.

Seventeen junior high and nine grade school teams compete in special team relay races.

Presiding at the presentation stand again this year, giving trophies to the victors, will be Kathryn Fighter, who was re-elected queen of the Relays by the student body. Her attendants will be Sue Paste, Patty Oberlander, Kathleen McIntosh, Frances Brown and Betty Love.

Team trophies and individual prizes valued at nearly $1,000 will be awarded to the winning athletes. The awards are stamped with the special Relays crest.

Widely-known Ohio college coaches will serve as officials, with Supt. W. L. Miller as honorary referee.

Preliminaries will get under way at 10 a. m., with the finals scheduled at 2 p. m.

The main Relays headquarters are located at Senior high school, with the downtown quarters at the Y. M. C. A.

Announcement was made today by the housing committee that sleeping accommodations for 285 visiting athletes have been arranged for tonight. Reservations for only about 15 more athletes are needed, R. B. Chapman, chairman of the committee, announces.

ASHLAND INFANT BURIED

ASHLAND — Funeral services for Lillian Louise Scott, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, 814 Lincoln Way west, who died at birth in the Samaritan hospital early today, were held this afternoon at the Bickey church in charge of Rev. C. A. Helm. Burial was in the Bickey cemetery.

MAPS HUGE LOAN

China to Seek $135,000,000 for National Defense Fund.

HANKOW, China — (AP) — The Chinese ministry of finance announced today it would float a national defense loan of 500,000,000 Chinese dollars (about $135,000,000) on May 1.

(Shortly after the outbreak of the war with Japan the Chinese government, then at Nanking, floated a war loan of half a billion Chinese dollars. On Oct. 11 it was announced the loan had been over half subscribed.)

ritory which was created 150 years ago by the Ordinance of 1787.

City schools will be closed the afternoon of the celebration and Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, said today that the county's rural schools will be permitted to close that afternoon if they want to participate in the county-wide observance.

Both the Mansfield Senior and Junior high school bands will join in the parade along with a number of school bands from neighboring cities and villiages.

To add to the "pioneer" atmosphere for the park, Mayor Hunter today was seeking a flag with 13 stars, representing the 13 original colonies, to float from the flagpole the day of the celebration.

ASHLAND—Lawrence Brubaker, son of Mrs. J. D. Brubaker of Milton township, and who is now county agent in Union county, will be heard on a radio program Monday evening from station WOSU. Brubaker will speak on the Farm Night program on the subject "An Interview of Union County Farmers."

LEXINGTON — The Jubiless Singers, a group of colored singers from the Prentiss Normal Institute, Prentiss, Miss., will present a program of sacred songs and music at 8 p. m. Sunday in the Lexington Presbyterian church. The concert is open to the public.

7 NEW FICTION VOLUMES ADDED BY CITY LIBRARY

2 Deal With Life in England, Another Satirizes Politics, Economics, Education.

Seven volumes of fiction were purchased by the Public library this week and will go into circulation Monday. "Trinity Town" by Norman Collins depicts the middle class Englishman. Mr. Broster and his wife and his fellow townsmen in a small English town. The book has a little of the flavor of Dickens' humor as it satirizes Mr. Broster's efforts to make money by gambling in real estate.

Another novel of England is Caroline England" by Noel Streatfield. It is the story of a woman and her family, and the whole place, time and scheme of life. Born in the 70's, Caroline represents the generation which was steeped in Victorian tradition and gentility, to whom shifting values in behavior, and the horror of the World war brought bewilderment and anguish.

Karel Capek's "War With The Newts" has a fantastic plot in which the world is overrun by a species of salamander capable of highly adaptive behavior. The book satirizes, under cover of witty exaggeration, the methods practiced in the name of politics, economics and education and though the fun is fast and furious, the fury is akin to righteous indignation.

"Black Light" by Reynolds, 'Comanche Chaser" by Coolidge; "Gray Sage" by Hilton, and "Mystery of the Broken Key" by Chapman, rounds out the fiction list this week.

Adds Autobiography.

"To A Lonely Boy," by Arthur Hopkins, is an autobiography done in a style refreshingly different. The scene is so well worked out that the reader fully believes the chapters have first been written as letters to a friendless boy, suffering in a hospital from an incurable disease.

As an adventure photographer, big game hunter, and deep sea diver, Capt. John D. Craig has filmed sequences in 35 countries for leading motion picture companies. "Danger Is My Business" is the interesting story of Capt. Craig's adventurous life.

"Two Wars and More to Come" by Herbert Lionel Matthews is a first hand narrative of war as it is being fought today, by a man who has brilliantly revived the great tradition of war reporting from the front line of action. Throughout the book runs a grim warning of "more to come." The writer was with the Italians in Ethiopia and has been in Madrid during the Spanish civil war, reporting for the New York Times.

The life of Robert Edwin Perry is full of human interest and tells of how Perry reached the North Pole after he had made eight expeditions over a period of 25 years, in William Herbert Hobbs' book "Perry."

"Music in American Life: Present and Future" by Augustus Delafield Zanzig is the result of the author's exhaustive study of music conditions throughout our country, made under the auspices of the National Recreation association.

Other non-fiction:

"Price Cutting and Price Maintenance" by Seligman and Love; "Economics of Open Price Systems," Lyon and Abramson; "Federal Justice," Cummings and McFarland; "Historical Societies in the United States and Canada;" "Learning to Study and Work Effectively," Book; "Are American Teachers Free?" Beale, "Through My Telescope," Hay; "Sunspots and Their Effects," Stetson; "Nature of Variable Stars," Merrill, "Everyday with Chemistry" Bunzell and Nisenson; "Business Desk Book," Greenwood, and "Garden Bulbs in Color" by McFarland.

BANS TAKING OF LIVE FISH BAIT

State Order Affects 200 Ohio Streams, Including Number in Richland Area.

The taking of live fish bait from more than 200 Ohio streams, including a number in the Richland county area, had been prohibited today by the State Conservation council, with the order to remain effective until Feb. 28, 1939.

The order, designed to aid in the restocking of Ohio streams with fish, forbids the removal of minnows, crayfish, hellgramites and other organisms that serve as fish food. Among the streams closed to bait taking in this section are:

Pine run and all tributaries in Richland and Ashland counties; Clearfork and all tributaries from Pleasant Hill dam to the junction of Cedar Fork in Ashland and Richland counties; Katatawa creek and tributaries in Ashland county; Muddy fork and its tributaries from source to state route 250 in Ashland, Medina and Wayne counties.

Waktomika creek and all tributaries from source to the junction of Little Waktomika creek in Coshocton, Know and Licking counties.

Olentangy river and all its tributaries in Crawford, Morrow, Delaware, Marion and Franklin counties; East branch of Black river, including East fork and West fork in Ashland, Medina and Lorain counties; Vermilion river above the mouth of East fork in Ashland, Huron and Erie counties; west branch of Huron river above entrance of Seymour creek and all tributaries of the west branch of the Huron river above the entrance of Slate run in Richland, Crawford and Huron counties.

BUILDS SHOP TO CUT PRIZED GEMS

Mountaineer Finds He Can Turn Out Jewelry Settings.

HAWK, N. C.—(AP)—Roby Buchanan, mountaineer miller, kept finding glistening pieces of semi-precious stones—garnet, amethyst and others—in creek beds and elsewhere near his mill.

Nobody seemed to value the uncut gems enough to buy them and they were of no use as jewelry in the rough. Others might have let it go at that but this mountaineer did not.

He rigged up a home-made apparatus to cut and polish the stones getting his power from a belt to the overshot waterwheel of his mill. Now, he has what may be the only waterpower gem-cutting shop in America.

More than 3,000,000 persons have viewed New York from the Empire State Tower.

Father Stands By Accused Son

On trial in Chicago, charged with the butcher knife slaying of his mother, whom he allegedly confessed killing because she scolded him for playing hookey, Theodore Danielsen, jr., 16, is comforted by his father who is making every effort to win his son's freedom.

Co-ed Stylists Would Shorten Men's Trousers

ST. PAUL—(UP)—The men at Macalester college are at their wits' end to combat suggestions by campus co-eds who would dictate how men should dress.

An enterprising girl reporter on the college weekly paper started the whole thing by conducting a survey among the girls.

The young women advised, for instance, that the men would "look ducky" in off-the-face hats with a ribbon looped under the chin. They suggested also a three-quarter length suit coat of eight gores. That, it was explained, would insure a fitting fullness to be set off with a gay zipper down the front.

The trousers must be shortened. Five inches from the instep, unless you have flat feet, would be the proper length to set off those stick-candy sox. The cuffs would be "pin tucks," and in place of the tailored belt, co-eds advise use of a soft band of flowered silk about the waist.

Vests, if the co-eds had their way, would be cut on the bias, and made in bright colors.

COFFIN FACTORY LOOTED

MONTREAL—(U.P.)—A premonition of death must have directed thieves to an address on St. Germain street. The address is a coffin factory and the loot consisted of three $125 coffins.

Harvard Museum Given 2,000 Sea Life Specimens

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—(INS)—More than 2,000 specimens of sea life, representing about 150 separate species, of which 30 were believed to be hitherto unknown to science, have been added to the Harvard Museum of Comparative Zoology.

The specimens were collected by Dr. Hubert L. Clark, associate professor of zoology, emeritus, and curator of Marine Invertebrates during a ten-week scientific cruise through 9,000 miles of tropical seas on the west coasts of Mexico, Central America and South America.

Professor Clark dredged primarily for echinoderms, a prickly-skinned group comprising one of the lesser branches of the animal kingdom. They help keep the ocean clean, form limestone rocks, and are eaten by fish.

PAYS $1.25 AN HOUR

COLUMBIA, Mo.—(U.P.)—A Missourian who works in his garden is making $1.25 an hour. J. W. C. Anderson, extension specialist in horticulture, said that the average profit over a three year period spent in working a Missouri garden was that amount.

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair; 80, good. Answers on Page 22.

1. Identify this man who succeeded a socialist as Premier of a European republic.
2. The ultimate purpose of the revised wage-hour bill is still to establish a 40-hour week and a 40-cents-an-hour minimum wage. True or false?
3. Is Francis W. Rickett (a) loyalist Spain's purchasing agent in Mexico, (b) promoter who was reported negotiating for the sale of Mexican oil, or (c) present British adviser of Haile Selassie?
4. How many children have been born to Mrs. Olivia Dionne since the quintuplets?
5. Germany having taken over Austria, what else did the U. S. say Germany should take over?

"PICKING a new car is like competing in our weekly Battle of Wits," explains Prof. Quiz. You have to know the FACTS to win!

"Make this comparison. Almost no difference in delivered prices, but LOOK at the difference in value!

NASH VS. "ALL 3" CARS

"Or, put it this way: to match this Nash value in 5 other cars means paying an average of $125 more!

"And that's just the 'starter'. Nash alone offers the 12% gasoline savings of the new simplified 'super-thrift' engine.

"No car anywhere near Nash's low price offers you the famous Nash Controlled Air System*.. the Automatic Cruising Gear*.. Vacuum Gear Shifting*.. 'Dancing Sand' sound-proofing ... or the 'bed-in-a-car' feature.

"Such finer features as complete full-pressure lubrication, and 7- and 9-bearing crankshafts, are exclusive with Nash and America's most expensive cars.

"I tell you, I don't see how Nash can put such low prices on such outstandingly superior cars!"

OUR ANSWER: Nash knows the only way to win against long-established rivals is to build SO MUCH MORE VALUE into its cars that the public can immediately SEE it!

Receiving Vision for Service

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson for April 24 is Mark 9:2-10, the Golden Text being Mark 9:7, "This is my beloved Son: hear ye him.")

THE PRIVILEGE Jesus gave to Peter, James and John, of witnessing his transfiguration was not given them for the purpose of entertaining them. It was for the purpose of inspiring them to greater service. Vision, voice and venture are found together again and again in our Bible. When the vision and voice do not result in venture they have failed to serve God's purpose.

The Vision.

Six days after Peter's confession of faith in Jesus as "the Christ, the Son of the living God" "Jesus taketh with him Peter and James and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them: and his garments became glistening, exceeding white, so as no fuller on earth can whiten them. And there appeared unto them Elijah with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus." (Luke adds that "they spake of his decease which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem.)" . . . "And there came a cloud overshadowing them: and there came a voice out of the cloud. This is my beloved Son; hear ye him. And suddenly looking round about, they saw no one any more, save Jesus only with themselves."

The Nature of the Vision.

This then was the vision and this the voice seen and heard by the highly privileged inner circle of our Lord's disciples. It came about, Luke tells us, "as he was praying." For a brief time God gave transparency to the veil of his human flesh and allowed the full glory of his deity to shine forth to the utter amazement of those who but lately had become assured that their Master was infinitely more than a man among men. Their hearts bore them testimony that he was "the Son of the living God." Now by a vision of God and by the voice of God the testimony of their hearts is confirmed to these "eye witnesses of his glory." Peter calls it a revelation "of the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." In other words, God staged for these three favored disciples a "preview of that glorious spectacle of our Lord's second coming at the end of this age when men "shall see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory."

The Purpose of the Vision.

Peter mistook the purpose of the vision. He wanted to stay there on the mount and enjoy it forever: "Peter answereth and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah. For he wist not what to answer; for they became sore afraid." It was a time of high and holy inspiration for the three disciples which Peter would prolong indefinitely. But inspiration is never an end in itself. The privileged vision of the mount must be carried to the underprivileged in misery in the valley below. The vision and the voice must move to venture in service in behalf of those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death in the lowlands of society. Church going and convention attending never will of themselves save the world. They serve their God-given purpose only as they illuminate, inspire and inflame those who worship on the mount to come down from the mount with Christ to the valley of human misery and serve by sharing the blessings of the mount with the teeming multitudes in the depths of human need below.

Legendary Indian Held To Be Token Of Good Fortune

GILLETTE, Wyo.—(UP)—Dick Stone, local collector of Indian relics, prizes among his trophys a legendary stone knife that, if tradition holds, should preserve him from harm.

An elderly Indian named Sage showed the knife to Stone many years ago and told how the implement had been handed down to succeeding generations by his grandfather, Drying-Up-Hide.

Drying-Up-Hide gave the knife to Sage's father, Straight-Old-Man, saying "Keep this and you will die of old age"

Before Straight-Old-Man died at the age of 101, he gave the knife to Sage, saying, "Keep this and you will die of old age."

In presenting the knife to Stone, Sage said.

"I am now 81—an old man." Handing the knife to the collector he said, "Keep this and you will die of old age."

Stone still has the knife.

JAILED HERE ON FORGERY COUNT

Shelby Youth Held to Grand Jury After Pleading Guilty.

Robert Bushey, 18, of Shelby, was held to the county grand jury today under $500 bond after he pleaded guilty to a forgery charge in Mayor D. B. Young's court at Shelby

Unable to provide bond, the youth was brought here and committed to the county jail.

Bushey was arrested in Tiffin Wednesday night on a warrant signed by Mrs. Cleo Seitz of near Shelby who said he gave her a forged check for $6.22. Shelby police said Bushey also is accused of forging checks in Attica, Willard and Bloomville, all of them totaling more than $38.

FRIDAY, APRIL 22 1938.

These are difficult times for the man who works and pays.

Jackie Coogan, who made millions as a child actor, doesn't seem to be doing so well as an adult. Growing up has its disadvantages.

It is fortunate for Mansfield, in a way, that those new streamlined trains will pass through after dark and before daylight—thus avoiding the unfavorable impression given by a glimpse of our "union depot."

No Money to Re-pave West Fourth.

MOST recent decision in the matter of re-paving West Fourth street is that this project is to go over until "next year"—apparently in the hope that by then the state highway department will reverse its present stand and share in meeting the cost, or that federal funds can be secured for the work.

Herein is provided an excellent example of the muddling that has resulted from encouragement of local dependence on the national government. West Fourth street is badly in need of re-paving. It is made even more dangerous by failure to remove the old street car tracks. In addition to serving as an important local thoroughfare it is much used as a through traffic highway by transient passenger cars and trucks.

Either the state highway department has a definite responsibility in sharing the cost of re-paving this highway—or it has none. The suggestion that early application be made next year for state assistance in re-paving the street sounds more like a buck-passing gesture rather than a serious approach to the problem of providing money for the improvement.

In earlier years Mansfield appears to have been able to formulate and carry through its street paving and maintenance plans in accordance with reasonable needs.

Now, despite the pouring of tremendous funds into the state highway department, and with the political maneuvering required to tap federal funds, there is apparently no business-like or dependable way for city officials to proceed with such projects.

West Fourth street should be re-paved THIS year!

Bad Record Made Worse.

A POLICE PATROLMAN in Cleveland has just been sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary for life, after conviction for second-degree murder in connection with the killing of a fruit stand proprietor during a beer parlor argument last January.

A paragraph in the Plain Dealer's editorial on this subject is illuminating. It says:

> Rainey in his fourteen years on the force had been cited half a dozen times for infractions, one of them involving drinking and fighting. Immediately preceding the shooting he had been visiting a place where gambling was going on in violation of law. After the shooting he fled the scene and was not found till the next day.

If anything is to be learned from such an unhappy occurrence it is that more care should be taken in selecting police officers and that there should be more serious regard for their conduct after they become officers.

Unless a man is willing to conform his own behavior, on or off duty, to the reasonable requirements of law observance, there is no justification for his being placed in a position of authority over others.

There has been some inclination to regard civil service rules as a protection against dismissal of public employes for either incompetence or misconduct. This is not the intent of civil service—nor should there be any hesitancy in removing an employe who has shown himself unfitted for the responsibilities of his position.

B. & O. Railroad Pleads Poverty.

RECOGNIZING the danger existing in connection with the unguarded grade crossing of the B. & O. railroad on Bowman street, the state utilities commission has nevertheless granted the railroad company an additional six months in which to install flashers.

The original order of the commission, issued in March, called for installation of flashers within ninety days.

The appeal of the railroad company for an extension of time was based on poverty—just as it has been for years in connection with the disreputable depot with which it has been permitted to disgrace Mansfield.

A railroad that is privileged to cross city streets must also be made to assume certain responsibilities in the matter of public safety. It would not seem unreasonable to require the railroad company to place watchmen at this crossing for full-time protection until flashers have been installed.

The loss of even one life is too high a price to pay for the financial consideration involved in providing protection at a dangerous grade crossing on a much traveled city street.

High Cost of Illness.

DR. THOMAS PARRAN, surgeon-general of the United States, is interested in a broader use of medical facilities. While expressing great admiration for the progress and high ideals of American medicine, he believes it might be of more practical service to the nation.

Many of the best physicians, he says, give little attention to the wide prevalence of disease or methods of dealing with it on a broad scale.

He calls attention to the excessive amount of illness among the poor. One-fourth of all sickness in the country, he says, occurs in families on public relief, and another fourth in families with less than $1,000 a year. Thus "half the illness is among the very poor." More than half a million people, mostly heads of families, are unemployed because of accident or disease, which is mostly preventable. "It would be cheaper for us as a nation," he declares, "to spend more for the prevention and cure of disease than to continue to bear its money cost."

If, as Dr. Parran believes, "the common good" should be the first interest of medical organization, and if it would really be cheaper to treat disease frankly as a public rather than a private problem, we would be on the verge of a new era in health and medicine. But there will be much argument before any such broad principle as public responsibility for all medical treatment is adopted.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

WILL the world permit bombing from the air to continue as it has been carried on by Insurgents in Spain and the Japanese in China?

Full details of these bombings now are reaching America, and even hardened warriors shudder.

Can a population that has lived through such bombings ever return to normal again? Will they not be shell-shocked the remainder of their lives? And what of the children? Even in the ancient wars and in the middle ages, children were considered apart. Today, there are as many child victims as grownups among civilian populations.

Can any international convention control air bombers? Will nations—or insurgents as in Spain—with this horrible weapon in their hands, foreswear its use on civilian populations, on large cities? It is not likely. The "war behind the lines" today assumes as much importance as the war at the front. The Insurgents were determined to reduce the morale of the Spanish Loyalists, to create such terror that the people would desert their government for the Insurgents, in order to obtain peace.

The same has been true in China. But the bombings have had the opposite effect in China. They have amalgamated and intensified the Chinese people. Now Japan is paying the piper. The Chinese are more phlegmatic than the peoples of highly cultivated nations like Spain. In Spain there has been nerve-shattering terror—and yet the Loyalist civilian population, against the overwhelming odds of foreign invaders and with no powers to defend it, has been remarkably courageous.

NO PLACE SAFE

The Japanese and the Spanish Insurgents (including Italian and German flyers) are not the only ones to be blamed. The tragedy is that every country may employ the same tactics, with this dreadful new instrument of destruction. Some countries may not desire to restrict it.

To indicate the full measure of tragedy, read this excerpt from an article in the New Statesman and Nation, London, by Richard Ellis and Audrey Russell:

"Fourteen planes bombed Barceloneta, the fishermen's quarter, a place of no military importance. An infants' school was hit. The number of dead was over a hundred, 56 of them children. Two lorries carried away the bodies.

"In the evening we went down to the Hospital Clinico. In the mortuary over 40 bodies, which could be recognized as such, had been laid out. Almost all were women and children."

LASTING PEACE?

The question arises, too, whether there can be a lasting peace in countries conquered by such methods.

The big powers are entering "peace pacts" in Europe—recognizing one another's conquests of the present and the past. But what of the peoples relegated to hopelessness?

The new "peace pacts" are mere scraps of paper so far as "guaranteeing" that the powder barrel will not explode. Millions of people subjected to foreign invasion and tyranny some day will rise up.

Italy has no guarantee that the Ethiopians and the Spaniards will remain under her dominion; Great Britain faces great trouble in Egypt and India; France has no assurance she can keep her foothold in northern Africa; and can Japan ever subdue 400,000,000 Chinese?

Any treaty that is based on injustice to any large group of people is a guarantee only of one thing—upheaval. Witness the Versailles treaty.

SURVIVAL OF THE PAST

Nations Seek Italian Friendship

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK — Signor Mussolini suddenly finds himself the eagerly sought lion of the hour, after a long period of being shunned by many of Europe's very best nations because of his annexation of Ethiopia.

All is forgiven, and the only burning memory of Italy's conquest of the African kingdom is that nursed by little Emperor Haile Selassie.

The answer to this, as is usual in such cases, is that Il Duce has something which many other folk either want to use or seek to avoid.

That something is what for most practical purposes is the balance of power in a Europe which is peevish from war-neurosis.

The fascist leader is in that highly enviable position of being useful both to the Franco-British democratic brotherhood and to the powerful Nazi dictatorship of his own ally, Hitler.

Mussolini can play the game both ways at once and still win—and that is exactly what he is doing.

FRANCE hasn't waited for the ink to dry on the Anglo-Italian pact of amity before rushing in to make a similar agreement with Il Duce.

That means a sharp rise in Italy's stock as a power. It is less than eight years ago that the naval conference (of 1930) in London, all but collapsed because of the fierce Franco-Italian fight revolving about Rome's demand for naval parity and Paris' refusal to grant it.

Your correspondent was at the conference and can testify that the battle got so bitter it would have been a violation of the law to print the language the two delegations used about each other.

While France approaches the Mussolini camp bearing gifts of frankincense and myrrh, Czechoslovakia has made haste to recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

Czechoslovakia has done this in part to pave the way for similar action by her god-mother, France, and in part for very good personal reasons.

Praha is sitting right upon Hitler's doorstep. She is eager to strengthen Mussolini's hand in hopes that he may reciprocate in some way if Hitler moves against her.

A HIGHLY interesting development is the statement in Rome diplomatic quarters that Italy is sounding out Yugoslavia about the possibility of a military alliance. The idea of this would be to prevent any possible German attempt to regain the Adriatic ports which Austria lost in the World war.

It will be surprising if Yugoslavia responds favorably to any such suggestion. The policy of this strong Balkan state has been to maintain a free hand.

Yugoslavia is mainly an agricultural country and a rich one in this respect. Sixty per cent of her foreign trade is with Italy and Germany, which in itself would impel her to tread cautiously.

Her main concern, however, is her security, and she doesn't want trouble with either of her big neighbors.

Watching Trends

The President's Power of Veto.

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Congress has risen so fast recently in regaining prestige that it may appear that it has already overrun the capital. But—look again. It is all a matter of relativity.

In the defeat of the President's reorganization bill Congress merely has recovered the prestige and position it had lost during the preceding five years.

It is true that presidential prestige also was at stake. Mr. Roosevelt's leaders in the House, wisely or otherwise, made the reorganization bill an issue of loyalty or disloyalty to the President's program. They lost.

Veto Still There.

BUT it is neither in the cards nor in the Constitution for Congress to seize the reins of government all by itself. It can deny to the President the legislation he wants. On the other hand, it is extremely unlikely he will often be compelled to accept legislation to which he seriously objects, for the President retains the executive power of veto. All he needs to prevent Congress overriding it is a fat one-third of Congress to support him. He has that.

Even the reorganization bill was defeated by only eight votes.

And while all that was going along, the President asked—and got—the biggest naval and army appropriations since the smoke of battle cleared away after the World war.

The congressional slap at the President on the reorganization bill is a case of the legislative branch assuming its usual attitude toward a second-term President.

Had It Passed.

INCIDENTALLY, the House was taking no chances that the reorganization bill would perpetuate the President's authority over appointment of postmasters. By executive order, postmasters in the past several years have been selected almost exclusively by examination, leaving congressmen the thin option of recommending one of the top three—in certain instances.

Before the reorganization bill was sent bleeding back to committee, the House, just in case the bill might pass, tacked upon it an amendment restoring postmasters to House patronage.

"We now are in the position where our constituents understand and know that the postmasterships are the patronage of congressmen," said Representative Fuller of Arkansas.

"Our chief executive in an unguarded moment in a campaign promised to issue an executive [illegible] these appointments away from us, but, by the eternal, we want them back and we are going to have them back." (Applause.)

And this from Representative Nichols of Oklahoma:

"I, for one, will yield to no man in the government of the United States in my ability to pick the best man to serve as the postmaster of a post office in my district, and I just do not think there is a man serving in the government in Washington, be he in any position, who can possibly know as much about the qualifications of a man in my district as I can know."

So there.

Some New Fields Of Opportunity

Young people have been insufficiently schooled in the importance of attaching themselves to an industry or a profession still on its way up, says Gretta Palmer, well-known writer, in the Commentator Magazine.

There are hundreds of new fields which offer worlds of opportunity to the younger generation. The [illegible] atmosphere explains the person picker, prefabricated homes, quick-frozen foods, fertilizer devised by the chemist—these things are already with us, but on a minute scale compared with their possibilities for [illegible] development.

Preventing Blindness.

It has been 30 years since 10 men established the New York State Committee for Prevention of Blindness an effort that now is national. Primarily they were interested in fighting ophthalmia neonatorum, commonly called babies' sore eyes, but the resultant program has come to include services which extend from the protection of the eyes of the newborn to the preservation of sight in old age.

It includes attempts at the possible elimination of the causes of all blindness and poor vision, the reduction to a minimum of eye injuries and removal of the chief causes of eyestrain.

The annual report of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness indicates that the efforts to prevent loss of sight by disease were given impetus with the beginning of the campaign last year against social diseases. New laws were passed as believed to be needed, education was made widespread, and science gained some new knowledge.

Altogether, the prospects for the greatest possible success look bright. The public is daily being made aware of the fact that blindness can be avoided in many thousands of cases.—Ohio State Journal.

Music In a Garage.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I WAS waiting in a garage. Something wrong with the gas line.

Some garages are grand. But this wasn't. A dirty cluttered place. Puddles of oil on the floor. Stench of oil in the air. Piles of old junk spilling out of the corners. Squeal and squawl and yowl of machinery.

Misery, too. A cripple huddled in the doorway. A ragged creature shuffling through the shadows, thrusting a starving, wolfish face in through the window of the car.

One of those ugly half hours that you hate. Life at its lowest. When you crawl into yourself and you just let things go on. Let things get the best of you. Ugliness. Hopelessness. Misery. Everything.

"Aw, what's the use?" I thought, huddled in the seat, staring out into the darkness, not caring how things looked, not caring how things stand, not caring—

But suddenly—
Incredible!
Was I dreaming?
But, no! It WAS music!
The loveliest of all music—the song the boy had loved best—
Shubert's "Serenade."
But, here?
In all this racket and mess?
It couldn't be! But it was! There was no mistaking that exquisite, yearning, haunting cry:
"Dearest; co-o-ome to me!"
Fragile as starlight, quivering through the darkness, floating above the bedlam, spreading and showering its silvery beauty over all the ugliness the music rose.

And the darkness was gone, the ugliness was forgotten, and the old, old pain was comforted by that blessed miracle—

And yet, moments later, coming slowly out of the spell, I realized there was no miracle. Plain enough, now that I stopped to think of it. Somewhere, in that clutter of cars, one with a radio. Someone had forgotten; left the dial turned; left the way open—AND MUSIC HAD COME.

Music had come in spite of all the ugliness, in spite of darkness overhead, and poverty at the door, simply because SOME ONE HAD LEFT THE WAY OPEN.

And I thought how it is that way with life—with even the saddest, darkest life.

Music can always come, if you'll leave the way open.

Always, above any discord, there can be a song—

Always, through any ugliness, beauty can find its way—

If only the heart is willing and open.

For beauty and truth and love are always waiting, all around us. They are waiting as that music was waiting. Wherever we pass, wherever we pause, in the narrowest alley, in the darkest room, there is music. Always music moves in a lovely, invisible tide all about us. But we cannot hear it, unless the way is opened.

Nor can the heart, huddled in loneliness, know healing beauty, unless it is attuned. But if it is there is no limit, there is no end to the voices that may come.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It was nice to see Maria De Kammerer again. Eight months is too long a time for so cheerful and pleasant a person to be away from New York. But she is a business woman as well as an artist, and it was good business for her to paint portraits of important people in England and on the continent. Maria was so occupied that she found time only for a fleeting visit to her native Budapest. Then she hurried back to her apartment in East 60th street.

To celebrate her return and to salute an old friend she gave a dinner party for Baroness Lily Hatvany. Very small. Black tie.

THERE were Hungarian foods, and Elizabeth Arden was there, and Frederic March, came in in a business suit with a blue shirt and tie. He was, he explained, hurrying off to Syracuse on a midnight train and could not possibly change clothes in time to make his train. Mrs. March seems even smaller across a dinner table than on the stage. She and her husband may do a new play in a few weeks.

Baroness Hatvany was just back after four months in Hollywood and she has no exalted opinion of that city of the angels. Some day I must find out, if I can, the Baroness' story. At this moment she is en route to Budapest. She was gay and optimistic, but under the surface you could tell that she was very much worried. The Baroness is an important woman in Budapest. She was a power in court circles. All the papers referred to her as "the beauteous Lily Hatvany." She is the author of innumerable plays, the best known of which perhaps is "Tonight Or Never," in which Helen Gahagan starred. Melvyn Douglas was also in the cast, and he starred in the picture. Then he married Helen and she retired from the theater.

Among the canvases in Maria's studio is one of Libby Holman's little boy, a forthright little fellow with blue eyes and curly golden hair, high forehead and eyes filled with an inquisitive wonder. He looks like a young prince out of a story book, one of the handsomest children I ever saw.

IN THE studio also was a portrait of Mrs. March and her two children, but Miss De Kammerer had that out of sight, as the Marches were there, and she thought perhaps it might embarrass them for guests to be commenting on it in their presence.

March is very much sold on Bermuda, but wouldn't be caught dead in Tahiti. He wouldn't have missed going there, however. He spent a lot of time traveling through the South Seas and while there ran into Nordoff, who collaborated with Hall on "Mutiny On The Bounty" and the other Bounty books.

In all, it was one of the pleasantest evenings I remember. Everybody had something interesting to say. And now I must drop Miss De Kammerer a little note and tell her what a nice time I had. And ask her not to stay away so long when she goes painting in England again.

Women's Hats.

I'M HEARING a lot of laughter these days about women's hats. The men think those hats are funny. They say that at last the women have reached the ultimate in the ridiculous. "Look," they say, "look what the women are doing. In a jittery world, torn to pieces by internecine strife, in a time when no man knows what horrible fate impends, the women are wearing the most ridiculous hats we've ever seen. They take a pill box, tie it over their foreheads, pull a couple of ribbons down around the neck to form a muffler and call it a hat. They've gone back to flowers and veils, and are even using snakeskin. And all the women, of every age, are doing the same thing. Debutantes and grandmas borrow each other's hats—and there's no such thing as a matron's hat these days. What is the world coming to, anyway?"

If you're asking me, I say there's no reason for anger, Brothers. The men may be laughing at the women's hats—but so are the women. The men think they're funny—so do the women. The designers have decided that a touch of absurdity, a dash of wit, a gay distortion, is quite the proper thing for these times. The women have accepted that decision joyously and are buying and wearing those ingenious contraptions the Mad Hatters have produced . . . They will cheerfully admit, what every man charges, that some of the hats they wear will keep neither rain nor sunshine off their heads. But they will also proclaim that when they set one of those amusing hats on the head, they feel younger and gayer and that some of the gloomy specters of modern life are driven back into the caves from which they have emerged.

Brothers, you may call this frivolity if you wish. But I call it the profoundest of wisdom . . . I have heard too many speak of war as though it were "inevitable" and as though no man could prevent its horrors. I have heard them tack that word "inevitable" onto many an avoidable grief and plague. I have seen many a man wearing a dull gray hat and a dull gray suit of clothes look solemnly upon calamity and invite it to do its worst.

These hats the women are wearing are their answer to such nonsense. They know all about wars, hard times, pinching poverty and desolation. They understand such terrors as well as any man can. But they have the courage to be gay, to wear a witty hat, in a time that requires all the race possesses of fortitude, endurance and gallantry . . . And to THEM I doff my drab chapeau and wish I had half as much courage as they!

And so into the heart of those
He served, his life a breath
Of healing was, but this they knew

LIGHTER TANKS SUPERIOR, ARMY EXPERTS SAY

Strategists Agree, However, That Infantryman Still Remains Supreme.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON— Operation of tanks in the Chinese and Spanish wars has shown that one of their greatest contributions is to crush enemy lines after two powerful forces are stalemated, army tacticians here agree.

Observation of tank activities in these two conflicts has demonstrated that the tanks "cannot win wars by themselves," but are valuable as auxiliaries to man power, military experts said.

These two wars have served as "testing grounds" for tanks and have brought out certain weaknesses both in use and construction which military strategists and engineers are striving to correct.

Infantry Still Supreme.

They have disproved, some army observers believe, the contention of tank "enthusiasts" that future armies would be completely mechanized. War reports have shown, they assert, that the bulk of the fighting, particularly in a drive to gain territory, must be carried on by the infantryman.

The present trend, army officials believe, is toward lighter, smaller and faster tanks, such as the German and Italian types. The Japanese are said to be using light tanks in major Chinese operations.

These light models are believed to be capable of speeds up to 50 miles an hour over rough terrain.

Virtually all of the 400 tanks in the United States army are of the "light" variety, weighing between eight and nine tons and usually accommodating four men. They carry guns of 30 and 50 caliber, although some also are equipped with 37-millimeter guns.

Army officials say these models are "very efficient" and believe them to be as good or better than those used by other countries.

The medium sized tank, weighing 15 or 16 tons, is not favored as much in this country as the smaller tank. It is more heavily armed but is slower.

It is reported that some countries are experimenting with a still heavier type of tank—a "mobile fortress." Army officials, although interested in any developements along this line, are said to be skeptical of such a weapon's value.

The United States has fewer tanks in proportion to the rest of its military strength than most other major powers, army officials believe, but they contend this country's high industrial development could assure speedy production in a crisis.

They also point out that it probably would be wasteful to produce large quantities of tanks at present because of the rapid obsolescence of such a comparatively new war weapon.

Asks Parents of 1,000 Pupils For Data For Thesis

Adopting the popular practice of graduate psychology students of turning to high schools for their material, Byron Carmean, principal at Lexington high school, today had sent 1,000 questionnaires to parents of Richland county high school pupils to obtain information for a thesis.

Distributed through the superintendents of the county's rural schools, the cards bear questions pertaining to the reactions of pupils to school, their hobbies, the way they spend their leisure time at home, and the amusements they prefer.

Carmean asked that the cards be returned to the superintendents after parents have answered the questions, and information obtained from them will be used by him in writing his thesis at Ohio State university this summer.

The information will be available later to superintendents of the schools for use in planning curriculums.

Carmean will enter Ohio State after the Lexington school closes to complete work on his Master's degree.

Collection of Water Bills to Date Hits 80 Per Cent.

West side Mansfield water consumers will have until tomorrow noon to pay their water and sewer rental bills without penalty, F. E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department said today.

Payments for the first half of the year will be accepted at the offices of the municipal water department in the city building until Saturday noon.

Collections to date total approximately 80 per cent of the total billing of $50,000. Lingafelter said he expected mail collections on the final day would bolster the collection to a near 100 per cent.

Receipts to date include approximately $27,000 in water collections and $13,000 in sewer rentals.

PUTS OKAY ON DATES FOR 85 FAIRS IN STATE

Agricultural Director Lists 1938 Festivals; Richland Event Opens Season.

Plans and dates for 85 county and independent fairs in Ohio, including the Richland county fair, had been approved today by Earl Hanefeld, state director of agriculture.

Approval by the department of agriculture makes the fairs eligible to receive state and county financial aid.

Earliest in the state this year, the Richland county festival will launch the fair season on July 27. After that fairs will be held continuously until late in October. The state fair will be the week of Aug. 27.

Bellville Fair Sept. 15.

The Bellville independent fair is set for Sept. 15, 16, and 17, while the Loudonville street fair has been scheduled for Oct. 3 to 8.

Dates for other fairs in north-central Ohio are:

Knox county at Mt. Vernon, Aug. 9-12; Crawford county at Bucyrus, Aug. 16-19; Marion county at Marion, Aug. 23-26; Ashland county at Ashland, Sept. 3-5; Huron county at Norwalk, Aug. 30-Sept. 2; Holmes county at Millersburg, Sept. 7-10; Medina county at Medina, Sept. 6-8; Wyandot county at Upper Sandusky, Sept. 13-16; Attica fair, Sept. 28-30; Morrow county at Mt. Gilead, Sept. 28-Oct. 1; Wayne county at Wooster, Sept. 12-16.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

For small children with good imaginations, Clifford Webb's new book "The North Pole Before Lunch" will prove a real delight.

The story is about two children, Michael and Jennifer, who like to build things. One day they decide to make an aeroplane. They manage to do this quite easily, and when it is finished, they get some bread and butter, leave a note, and make a trial flight to the North Pole. When they run out of petrol, they land, and meet a very nice Eskimo family. They see the village, the store, watch them build an igloo, talk to the animals, plant their own private flag at the North Pole, and manage to get back home for bath-time.

The many illustrations and large print make this an ideal picture-story book for young children.

MEXICO REJECTS BRITISH DEMAND

Refuses to Return Oil Lands Seized by Government Decree.

MEXICO CITY — (UP) — Mexico has refused flatly to return British oil properties to their former owners and brushed aside Great Britain's contention that the expropriation was a "denial of justice" motivated by politics.

Britain's protest included a demand for restoration of the seized holdings of the Mexican Eagle Oil company, a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell.

Foreign Secretary Eduardo Hay said that the concern, "being a national company, is legally incapacitated from seeking the support of a foreign state in defense of its interests."

GOES IN AMBULANCE

PASADENA, Cal. (UP) Orville Brown of the Community Playhouse wouldn't miss seeing his son in the leading role of a production. Although he has been in a hospital for two weeks, he insisted on being conveyed to the theater in an ambulance, then inside on a stretcher and after the performance, returned to the hospital in the same manner.

WEIGHS 450 POUNDS

SYDNEY —(UP)— A sea shell large enough for a baby's bath tub has just been presented to the Australian museum. It weighs 450 pounds, is 3 feet 2 inches in length, and 2 feet and ½ inch in width. It was found on a reef off Gilbert Island.

Sad Exodus From Homeland to Sanctuary

The sign post at the left points to possible havens for these weary Spanish refugees. Bearing all their worldly goods, the pitiful group has just trudged across the formidable Pyrenees mountains. Five kilometers ahead is the French frontier village of Les, sanctuary and rest from the bloodshed and ruin of war-ravaged Spain.

WRONG'S RIGHT ON THESE ROADS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — (AP) — Driving on the "wrong" side of the road may be all right at times in Alaska, a federal judge has decided.

Observing that on the territory's country roads there sometimes is "one beaten track or lane of travel" used by automobiles traveling in both directions, Judge Simon Hellenthal instructed a jury in an accident case that a motorist "is not necessarily negligent because he drives on the left-hand side of a road in which but one track is being used, provided he drives cautiously."

URGES SEARCH FOR METEORITE

Smithsonian Official Says 'Shooting Star' Would Reward Finders.

WASHINGTON—(ILP)—"Stones from Heaven" may be worth more than "Pennies from Heaven," the Smithsonian institution said in requesting a nation-wide search for meteorites.

E. P. Henderson, of the museum's geology department, estimated that thousands of meteorites — or fragments of shooting stars — are scattered throughout the United States. Each meteorite, he said, would "bring a very good return for a day's work," although it wouldn't make the finder rich.

Henderson said scientists had to depend on the average citizen to find the "stones from heaven," because most "shooting stars" are high above the earth and usually appear to fall miles from their actual landing place.

The best way to recognize a meteorite, Henderson said, is by its extraordinary weight. Meteorites, often composed almost entirely of iron and nickel, are among the heaviest of rocks.

The star fragments do not always show signs of burning. The stones, although actually burned because of friction with air, probably are cool enough to handle when they strike the earth, Henderson said.

He explained that a meteoroid is nearly at absolute zero—270 degrees below zero Centigrade—when it enters the earth's atmosphere. As the meteor plunges through the atmosphere in a few seconds, the exterior becomes white-hot before the interior is heated above ordinary earth temperatures.

SWEET CORN IN MARKET NEWS

New Crop Arrives for Week-End; Variety of Homegrown Vegetables Increases.

Arrival of fresh white sweet corn tops the food news of the week-end, according to reports from Mansfield markets And summer is practically here with home grown spinach, rhubarb, asparagus, watercress and dandelion greens available.

Fruits are not particularly plentiful, but there are still Florida and California grapefruit and oranges on the market as well as cocoanuts, pineapples, apples, grapes and bananas.

Both head lettuce and pascal celery are still here but a little higher in price than usual. Variety will be the spice of the dinner table this week if the shopper selects from parsnips, new cabbage or red cabbage, hot house or Florida tomatoes, endive, ascarola, kale, beets, turnips, carrots, green, wax or lima beans, peas, artichokes or Italian squash.

For seasoning or salads there is anise, parsley root and parsley, leeks, green onions and chives.

In addition to the few fruits mentioned there are sickle pears, limes, cantaloupe and honey dew melons and Louisiana strawberries.

DISHWASHING DIRGE!

Here's An Easy Answer To Those Protests Over "Doing Dishes"

"DO I have to do those old dishes?" Ever hear laments like this at your house? Maybe there's good reason — perhaps you could make those dishwashings a lot easier. For it's grease — stubborn substance that adheres to dishes, silver, baking pans and skillets — that makes dishwashing doubly difficult. Modern housekeepers use a grease solvent — Climalene. They find this thrifty cleanser produces a thicker, longer-lasting suds . . . yet actually reduces soap bills one-half or more. Dishes . . . silver . . . pots and pans emerge grease-free . . . glistening. And remember, when you reach once for Climalene you'll never need to reach twice for soap. P-7

2-HOUR PARKING LIMIT SOUGHT

W. Dickson Avenue Residents Ask Extension Of Restrictions.

City council had before it today a request for the extension of the two-hour parking restrictions on West Dickson avenue between North Walnut street and North Weldon avenue.

A petition signed by six property owners on the street was on file today with Council Clerk William J. Beers, jr., and asked council to set up a two-hour parking restriction on the north side of West Dickson from North Walnut street to North Weldon avenue, except that section between North Walnut street to the east line of the post office property.

PRISON TERMS TOTAL 46 YEARS

11 Found Guilty of Running Huge Alcohol 'Cracking' Ring Hear Sentences.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood has sentenced 11 men found guilty of operating a huge alcohol "cracking" ring in northeastern Ohio to a total of 46 years in prison Nine are being held here pending removal to federal prisons.

The other two were placed on probation after Judge Underwood suspended five year sentences.

Those shown leniency were James Laro and George Fadel, both of Cleveland.

The men sentenced to prison were:

Joseph C. Ross, five years; Patrick Trasicana, two years; Peter M. Justko, eight years; Sam Brushone, two years, Peter Albenze, two years, all of Pittsburgh.

August Mormino, five years, Thomas Centenni, five years; Hurley Jones, four years, all of Cleveland.

Harry Dangler, alias Harry Morgan, Steubenville, three years.

The sentence of Vincent Reo, Cleveland, and Adam Martello, Steubenville, were deferred pending further investigation.

James Epifano and John DeCara, both of Steubenville, had their sentences deferred when their attorneys were unable to appear in court.

The ring operated in Steubenville, Painesville and Cleveland federal agents said. The men were accused of conspiracy to defraud the government of approximately $300,000 in taxes.

'SHORT RIDE' TOO LONG

ELYRIA, O — (UP) — Two 14-year-old Akron boys decided that they wanted to take a "short ride," so they hopped into an open gondola car of a long freight train. The train started, but did not slow down, and the adventurous pair wound up in Elyria's jail—55 miles away from home, where they were sheltered and fed by police until their return home

WOMAN ROBBER

COLUMBUS — (INS) — A neatly dressed woman who robs housewives at their homes was sought today by police following a report by Mrs. Edith Pascol, 31, that a woman, about 30, made her sit on a bed at the point of a gun while she ransacked the room of $12, two dresses and some bed linen.

LOAN REQUESTS BY BUSINESS POUR INTO RFC

Small Concerns Responding to Government Lending Plan, Washington Says.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Officials of the securities commission and the Reconstruction Finance corporation reported tdoay that business men were responding in increasing numbers to administration lending proposals.

A spokesman said the RFC was "putting the steam on" to take care of loan applications pouring into its 32 regional offices, chiefly from small business men wanting some of the agency's $1,500,000,000 of lendable funds.

From an SEC official came word that the commission had been "swamped" with inquiries about its simplified registration procedure. Undertaken at the request of President Roosevelt as part of his economic program, this simplification was designed to make it easier and faster for business interests to register small issues.

The RFC lacked definite figures on increases in loan applications, because the latest requests are pending in regional offices, but activity was described as specially heavy in New York.

The treasury advanced its program to expand credit resources by deciding to begin moving its $1,400,000,000 gold credit to the nation's banks at the rate of $50,0000,000 a week.

Study Railroad Angle.

Congressional leaders meanwhile were discussing a proposal that a public works program for railroads be woven into the president's lending-spending campaign.

The carriers would supply materials for maintenance projects, and the government would pay for labor. Workers would be chosen from among those whom the railroads have furloughed.

Chairman Wheeler (D., Mont.) of the senate interstate commerce committee said he would talk over the plan with WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins and other officials when they meet next week to draw up emergency railroad legislation.

After conferring yesterday with 20 railroad labor and management representatives, Wheeler emphasized that no final conclusions were reached. He said he was inclined to favor an administration proposal for making $300,000,000 available for railroad equipment loans. Both labor and management asked that this be approved.

The Montanan said he also favored additional federal loans for some "borderline" railroads which might be expected to stay out of bankruptcy if funds were provided to "tide them over."

Betty Rallies to Jackie's Support In Court Battle

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Betty Grable, $500-a-week film dancer, told today of ignoring a warning by her mother-in-law that she was marrying a "pauper," if she married Jackie Coogan.

Meanwhile, Wallace Beery, a friend of Jackie's kid days in the movies, rallied to his support in his legal fight for a share of his screen fortune.

Jackie maintains that his father, the late Jack Coogan, sr., had intended to give him his accumulated film earnings when he came of age.

To "the kid's" cause, Beery added his word today:

"Not once, but many times — more than a dozen—I think Jack told me that he had never used or intended to use a cent the boy earned."

Miss Grable said that after their engagement was announced, her mother received a telephone call from Jackie's mother.

"If Betty thinks she is marrying a rich boy she is very much mistaken. He hasn't a cent. Jackie is a pauper!" Miss Grable quoted Mrs. Bernstein as saying.

AUTOISTS FINED

Two Assessed Total of $30 on Reckless Driving Charges.

Two out-of-town motorists paid fines totaling $30 and costs when arraigned in municipal court today on charges of careless and reckless driving.

F. J. Harris, 30, of Ashland, and Gardner J. Wilder, 21, of Medina, both pleaded guilty and were fined $15 and costs each.

Harris was charged by police with driving 60 miles an hour on Park avenue west yesterday afternoon, while Wilder was arrested by state highway patrolmen on Ashland road.

TAKEN TO PEN

ASHLAND—Vernon McKinley, found guilty of non-support for failure to provide for three children by an Ashland common pleas court jury, was taken to the Ohio penitentiary in Columbus to begin serving a sentence of from one to three years, Sheriff H. F. Wallett said here.

Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY DEAD

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — A. G. Knebel, general secretary of the Cleveland Y. M. C. A., died today of heart disease. He formerly was in charge of all railroad Y. M. C. A. branches in the country.

QUEEN ELIZABETH ILL

LONDON (INS)—Indisposed because of a slight cold in her head, Queen Elizabeth today was forced to keep to her bed on the advice of her physician.

3 FROM COUNTY GIVEN PAROLES

Richland Inmates Among 106 Given Releases From O. S. R.

Three Richland county inmates are among the 106 at the Mansfield reformatory granted paroles by the Ohio board of paroles, Associated Press dispatches from Columbus said today.

The inmates are: Ray Greene, 26, who will be reelased on Sept. 3, James Bradford and Albert Bennett, both 17, will be paroled Sept. 1.

Greene will be reelased after having served 15 months on a one to 15-year sentence for attempting to break and enter. He was received at the institution June 3, 1937.

Bradford and Bennett were received at the reformatory June 10, 1937, and are under sentence from one year to age for auto theft.

SEEK TO PUSH LUCAS PROJECT

School Officials Confer With PWA on Release of Funds for $86,000 Addition.

Seeking immediate action in the construction of an $86,000 addition to the Lucas school, Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, and two members and the clerk of the Monroe township board of education were in Columbus yesterday to confer with state PWA officials.

A $38,700 federal grant, representing 45 per cent of the cost of the project, has been approved for the school and awaits action of congress in approving additional PWA funds.

With a $46,000 bond issue already voted at Lucas, the county delegation yesterday was assured that the project will be on the preferred list when more federal funds are available, possibly within six weeks.

The project calls for construction of a gymnasium and auditorium and six more classrooms. Charles Marr of New Philadelphia is the architect for the project.

With Robinson yesterday were E. C. Culler, clerk of the Monroe township board; H. M. McConnell and Sidney Baughman, board members.

TAKES STAND

Boy Accused of Murdering Mother to Tell Story.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Theodore Danielsen, jr., a slender, reserved boy of 16 accused of murdering his crippled mother with a bread knife, was brought to court today to testify in his own defense.

In the crowded criminal courtroom were his father, playmates, teachers, neighbors and others who had taken the witness stand yesterday to describe him as an exemplary youth whom they scarcely could imagine cast in the role of a slayer.

The anguished, middle-aged father expressed the belief his wife started a scuffle that ended in her death. It was he who found the body, knife embedded in the throat, in the kitchen of their home March 3.

JAIL MUSICIAN AS EXTORTIONER

Police Arrest Suspect In Attempt To Get $30,000 From Levine.

CHICAGO —(INS)— A musician who came to Chicago six months ago from California was arrested today for attempting to extort $30,000 from Murray Levine, New Rochelle, N. Y. lawyer, whose son, Peter, was kidnaped last Feb. 24 and still is missing.

The musician, seized by G-men, gave his name as Charles Edmund Lavender, 36. The federal agents carried out instructions written in an extortion letter to Levine in order to trap the man.

On receipt of the letter in New Rochelle, Levine notified federal authorities and a G-man registered in a Loop hotel under the name of J. P. Smith, according to the letter's directions.

5 YOUTHS HEAR CHAIR SENTENCE

All Must Die At Sing Sing For Killing N. Y. Detective.

NEW YORK (AP)—Five youths, ranging in age from 18 to 27, were sentenced to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing by Judge Charles C. Nott, jr., today for the holdup murder of Detective Michael J. Foley on April 10, 1937.

The five are Dominick Guariglia, 18, Joseph H. O'Loughlin, 23, Arthur Friedman, 21, Isidor Zimmerman, 27. They were convicted April 14.

Jude Nott fixed the week of May 30 for the execution, and denied motions to set aside the jury's verdict.

74-PIECE SENIOR HIGH BAND TO BID FOR STATE TITLE TOMORROW

Mansfield High school's 74-piece band makes a bid for the state championship tomorrow when it goes to Columbus to compete in the Ohio high school contest at Ohio State university.

The band will be one of 52 from all sections of the state participating in the contest, representing class A, B and C schools. All contestants are winners in district contests held last month.

Opening at 9 a. m., competition will continue throughout the day. J. Merton Holcombe, director of the Mansfield unit, said his musicians are scheduled to play at 5:30 p. m. in the gymnasium on the university campus. He said it was not known whether any portion of the contest will be broadcast over one of the Columbus radio stations.

All bands will be required to play three selections, a march and two overtures. The required number for the contest is "Slavonic Rhapsody." Others selected by the Mansfield band are "Beatrice and Benedict," and "Sousa's Triumphal March."

The band will make the trip in three school buses, leaving John Simpson Junior high school at 9 a. m. The instruments will be transported to Columbus in a truck.

The annual state choral contest was being held today at the university with 45 vocal groups, numbering more than 2,000 pupils competing. The 52 bands will be made up of more than 4,000 students. The contest is under the supervision of Prof. Eugene J. Weigel, director of the Ohio State university band.

Members of the contest band who will make the trip are: Mary Baer, Helen Beilstein, Ruth Blaney, Edna Bookwalter, Marjorie Calver, Bertha Croak, Helen Damlos, Donna Draves, Jacque Edwards, Cleo Fair, Betty Frye, Jack Fry, James Hart, Janet Hemphill, Helen Holzmiller, Marjorie Homerick, Eugene Lantz, Marjorie Lay, Mary Lou Marks, Roy Molson, Alma Newsome, Bernard Summons, Dorothy Wagner and Eileen Zediker, clarinets.

Leonard Burkholder, Waldo DeVore, Jack Myers and Richard Spetka, trumpets; William Ferguson, David Hagelbarger, William Kochert, Robert Prosser, Jack Selander, William Smith and Richard Shively, cornets; Jane Miller and Berlington Owens, bartiones; William Berkley and Malcolm Shawk, French horns; Lois Ohler, Alvena Spriggins, Jeanette Werner and Suzanne Curry, flutes; Mary Alice Smith, oboe.

Curtiss Beidelschies, Lester Diskosky, Walter Lake, Robert Larson, Robert Lehman, Dwight McCready and Robert Pugh, trombones; Ralph Arlin, Harold Duda, Clifford Emerick, Paul Hannewald, Rudolph Perry, Harold Wynn and Maxine Zimmerman, saxophones; Dale Bechtel, Fred Hanson, Louis Nixon, Paul Sauder and Todd Strohmenger, basses; Ted Bair, Robert Black, Harold Flaharty, Mary Alice Mead, Robert Norris, Louise Schuler, William Wygant and Robert Reams, drums; Richard Dent and George O'Dell, drum majors, and Margaret Kochheiser, librarian.

HONOR PASTOR

Rev. Zundel Will Be Guest at Fellowship Dinner.

SHELBY—Rev. Ralph Zundel, pastor of the First Baptist church, who resigned recently to accept the pastorate at the Zanesville Baptist church, will preach his final sermon Sunday morning at the Shelby church.

Following the service, a fellowship dinner will be given in his honor by the congregation of the church. Rev. Zundel leaves Shelby on Wednesday to take up his duties at Zanesville.

Rev. Zundel came to Shelby in March, 1932, from the Pilgrim Community church, Mansfield. At present he is president of Council of Religious Education, and secretary-treasurer of the Shelby Ministerial association.

OBERLIN ENDS TWO-DAY 'WAR'

Students Demobilized After Holding Memorial Services For 'Dead.'

OBERLIN —(INS)— Oberlin college's "war" period ended today, and drafted students were demobilized and trooped to Finney chapel to hear an explanation of their day of mobilization.

Dr. Kenneth Brown, president of Hiram college, explained the causes and effects and the educational value of the mobilization, in which students were drafted and a memorial service was held for those killed in the "war."

The peaceful, sunny Oberlin campus for 24 hours had been an armed camp. National guard troops in uniform drilled rookies drafted from the student ranks. Co-ed nurses prepared bandages and took care of the injured.

DRIVES ON TRACK, GETS $60 FINE

MILLERSBURG—Roger Trout, 34, of Springfield, who is employed here on the Holmes R. E. A., was fined $60 and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of driving an auto while under influence of intoxicating liquor. He made arrangements to pay and was released.

Trout was arrested at 1 a. m. Saturday by Sheriff Harry R. Weiss after he caused the midnight Pennsylvania passenger train to be held up for a half hour while his auto was moved from between the tracks where it became wedged when Trout attempted to drive it on the tracks.

BUILDING FALLS

30 Women, Children Injured As Auditorium Collapses.

MANILA — (INS) — At least 30 women and children were injured seriously and many others slightly hurt when a section of a large auditorium at Iloilo, on the island of Panay, collapsed, it was reported here today.

The mishap occurred during the crowning of Iloilo's carnival queen. A torrential rain sprung up and the crowds dashed into the auditorium many of them crowding onto the weakened section.

SETS DATES FOR CITY WARDS IN CLEAN-UP DRIVE

Styert Urges Entire City to Co-operate in Campaign Starting May 2.

Mansfield's winter accumulation of rubbish and debris will fly when clean-up, paint-up, fix-up and plant-up week opens on May 2, for the city's annual "face-lifting" campaign.

Announcing the schedule of pick-ups to be made by city trucks, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert, today urged all property owners to co-operate by cleaning up their premises so that Mansfield can go into the spring season presenting the best possible appearance.

The director said that a crew of city workmen and three trucks will work in the first and sixth wards on May 2, 3 and 4. The fourth and fifth wards will be covered on May 5, 6 and 7, while the second and third wards will be cleaned up on May 9 and 10.

Won't Take Ashes.

City trucks will remove all rubbish placed in containers at the curb where it will be easily accessible. Styert warned against placing ashes for removal, since the city maintains an ash collecting service free of charge for its garbage service customers.

Styert urged property owners in the residential as well as business sections to co-operate in the clean-up, citing three benefits to be derived from such a campaign —improved sanitary conditions, enhanced property values and creation of employment.

Many homes are in need of paint or repairs, Styert said, and urged owners to do the work during the clean-up period, to add to the value of the property and also give work to unemployed. Removal of rubbish, he pointed out, also destroys possible breeding places for disease germs.

Although the clean-up crew may not be able to cover the entire wards in one day, Styert urged that the containers be placed at the curbs ready for removal on the days designated.

DEDICATE MEMORIAL TO EARLY ASHLAND EDUCATOR SUNDAY

ASHLAND—Dr. Lorin Andrews, who nearly a century ago was at the head of Ashland academy, later was the first superintendent of the Massillon public schools and still later president of Kenyon college, at Gambier, is to be commemorated at Massillon Sunday afternoon.

At that time the Lorin Andrews Junior high school will dedicate a bronze plaque donated by Mrs. Major McKinley Tent No. 1, Daughters of Union Veterans; also a picture of Dr. Andrews, presented by the Parent-Teacher association of that building.

On Memorial Day, 1930, the Ashland County Historical society dedicated, at the Vachon building, East Main street, Ashland, a bronze tablet marking the site of the log cabin in which Dr. Andrews, first to volunteer for service for the Civil war, was born April 1, 1819.

He raised a company of volunteers in Knox county, became the colonel of the regiment of which that company was a part. As the result of disease contracted during war service in West Virginia, Col. Andrews died at Gambier, Sept. 18, 1861. He is buried in the little cemetery on the Kenyon college campus, west of Rosse hall.

One of the speakers at the ceremonies at Massillon Sunday afternoon will be William A. Duff, local historian, secretary of the Ashland County Historical society, who is to speak on "Early Life of Lorin Andrews."

APPROVES 40-40 DRAFT OF WAGE, HOUR PROPOSAL

House Committee Asks Quick Action to Preclude Pay Cuts, Deflation.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The house labor committee today favorably reported a bill to establish a 40 cents an hour wage for a 40-hour maximum work week and urged its enactment to preclude wage cuts and deflation.

The bill, drafted after months of struggle within the committee, would establish the "ceiling" on hours and "floor" for wages by gradual adjustments of standards over three years.

Initially the measure would establish a minimum wage of 25 cents and a 44-hour week, gradually revising those standards to reach the ultimate goal of "40-40."

The report, prepared by Chairman Mary Norton, D., N. J., of the labor committee, warned that the deflation spiral "if allowed to gather sufficient strength, may threaten the foundations of government itself." It declared relief demands on federal and state governments will continue unless private employes pay wages sufficient to cover at least the bare cost of living.

No Differentials.

Their report made a bid for the support of Republicans and industrial area congressmen by pointing out that there are no differentials between industries, sections or employers and that supreme court minimum wage rulings have erased differences between the two parties in method of approaching the problem of wages, hours and child labor.

Also serving to wipe out these differences, the report declared, is the absence of a board of administrator to administer the provision for an ultimate, inflexible "40-40" standard.

The report contended that while the federal government should not attempt to regulate wages of all earners it cannot stand by and permit the channels of interstate commerce to be used to set the deflation spiral in motion.

"No employe in any part of the United States in any industry affecting interstate commerce need fear that the fair labor standards maintained by his employers will be jeopardized by oppressive labor standards maintained by those with whom his employer competes," the report said.

The report was accompanied by a minority statement signed by only one member of the labor committee—Rep. Robert Ramspeck, D., Ga.

Ramspeck contended that an inflexible bill without a board to relax the final standards would be unconstitutional, discriminatory against the south and "arbitrary."

As the bill was reported, Rep. Michael J. Satck, D., Pa., appealed to the public to write and telegraph congress to assure house consideration of the measure.

Opens Revival

Rev. Lawrence E. Guffey of Galion, above, will preach the first of a series of revival meetings tonight at the Free Methodist church in Big Prairie, Rev. O. M. Shaw, pastor, announced today. Rev. Guffey will conduct the services through Monday when he will be succeeded by Rev. Robert B. Maxwell, Scotch evangelist. The services will continue through Sunday, May 8.

28 TEACHERS AT MADISON NAMED

School Head Announces List of Instructors for Year Starting in Fall.

Appointment of 28 instructors who will teach in the Madison township schools during the 1938-39 school year was announced today by Olan LaRue, superintendent of Madison schools.

The teachers have been approved by the Madison board of education, and salaries will be set at a future meeting of the board, LaRue said.

LaRue was re-appointed as superintendent for a two-year term. He came to the Madison schools in July 1937 from Iberia where he had served for nine years.

The faculty at Madison high school for the next year will consist of Miss Lenore Mills, home economics and cafeteria; Miss Nellie Reader, English and girls physical education; Miss Gladys MacDonald, commercial subjects; Miss Evalyn Wiseman, English, Latin and French; W. G. McFadden, English and social studies; Kenneth Nixon, science and mathematics. L. N. McHenry, industrial arts; Charles Vanderbilt, Enlgish and science; James Wendling, instrumental and vocal music; A. L. Fendrick, history, boy's physical education and coach; W. E. Miller, commercial subjects and principal; Miss Louise Veach, assistant music instructor; Olan LaRue, mathematics, social science, natural science and superintendent.

Teachers in the elementary schools are: East Mansfield, Olin Moore, seventh and eighth grades; Miss Myrta Dill, fifth and sixth grades; Miss Anna Kopcial, fourth and fifth grades, and Miss Elizabeth Braden, second and third grades; Woodville, R. D. McCollough, seventh and eighth grades; Miss Janette Barcus, fifth and sixth grades; Miss Grace Morris, third and fourth grades, and Miss Gertrude Smith, first and second grades.

Lincoln Heights, David Lantz, seventh and eihth grades; Miss Ruth Fenner, fifth and sixth grades; Mrss. Helen Bishop Brown, third and fourth grades, and Miss Waldine Geese, first and second rades.

Those appointed to the one-room schools are William Kopcial, Terman; Miss Lois Baughman, Beer; M. A. Strine, Hickory Hal, and Lester Fair, Maple Grove.

PLAN CALLS FOR 2 COUNTY LAKES

Wooddell Looks for Federal Aid to Create Recreation Spots Near Dams.

the Muskingum conservancy district forbid general tax assessments for recreational purposes. Such a purpose exceeded the authorized purpose of the flood control, he claimed.

While natural lakes result from the flood control dams, no money was appropriated for turning them into playgrounds.

Wooddell said two means of securing federal aid to replace the state assessments are possible One would be the diversion of Ohio's share of revenue from the Pittman-Robertson law which imposes federal excise taxes on arms and munitions. Second, acquisition of land by the national forestry service, park service or resettlement administration, acting separately or jointly.

Under the first plan, Wooddell estimated Ohio would receive $150,000 the first year.

In the event either method is adopted, Wooddell said the Civilian Conservation Corps could be used at no cost to the state to make lakeside improvements.

"When finished," he said, "these 11 lakes would increase Ohio's lake surface by 50 per cent We would be able to offer a natural playground with fish and game to an additional 1,000,000 persons than are now able to enjoy the outdoors."

For an extra $1,500,000 which Ohio would add to the $45,000,000 flood control development, he pointed out, Ohio could have the finest recreational facilities in the middle west. Plans for the 11 lakes, including Charles Mill and Pleaasnt Hill, have already been drawn, he added.

The three so-called "dry dams" include Mohicanville in Ashland county, Mohawk in Coshocton and Willis Creek in Muskingum county.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

April 21.

THIS afternoon I took my little son, two old willow rods with fishing line, hooks, sinkers and bobs of wood—an old tin can full of worms. It was an afternoon for play and freedom and we loved the very thought of fishing—to stand along the silty bank dotted with horsetail ferns, peavines and hemlock or to sit on smooth driftwood close to the water's edge watching all the time our willow poles stuck in sand with a brace beneath to hold the other end just the right height above the water.

It was a glorious day. The sun shone bright but here and there we saw shadows move across the landscape and across the water. The wheat fields showed a brilliant,, tender green, the meadow grass a darker shade, the distant woodland and fresh plowed field a contrast of drab and luscious brown. Our poles which stuck out five feet or more above the water's edge. The wooden bobs stood upright and semed to float across the ripples. A fish of uncertain length jumped from the surface and with a splash fell back again.

Sonny clapped his hands in glee and said, "That sutter wants out. Hope he smells our bait."

Just then his bob moved jerkily, then suddenly went under.

"He did! He smelled our bait!" And with quick, slippery movements he grabbed the quivering rod and pulled it high above the water until a fish five inches long hung wiggling just above the surface.

"It's a whopper!" he cried excitedly, as it jumped and squirmed on the stand. "I'll have it for my supper—we can all have some of that fish!" Sonny put him on a string and tied it to a stake.

We fished for half an hour longer but caught nothing more. The sun was getting low. The captive fish was lowered into an old tin can half full of water and placed in the car. We pulled the rods from the sand and wound the lines spirally around the poles.

The little boy was happy. He was a fisherman He could hardly wait until the car stopped to jump out and as he ran to meet his mother on the porch I saw his little hands measure a fish twelve to fifteen inches long.

'Bugs' Moran, Aid Arrested in $200,000 Scheme Involving Travelers' Checks.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO — George (Bugs) Moran, notorious gang chief, and Frankie Parker, one time whisky runner, were arrested today for questioning about an underworld plot to pass $200,000 in fraudulent travelers' checks in all principal cities of the country.

The men and four associates were seized only a few hours after three men were arrested in Pittsburgh with $21,800 of counterfeit American Railway Express checks in their possession.

Police revealed that at least 35 members of the ring were being sought in Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and said warnings had been sent to authorities of other large cites to guard against passage of the checks.

Lead New Gang.

Moran and Parker, police said, were leaders of a newly-organized gang. A gang which Moran headed during the prohibition hey-day, was wiped out in the St. Valentine's day massacre of 1929. Enemies with whom he was fighting for control of illicit liquor interests, machine-gunned seven of his followers in a Chicago garage.

Parker was an airplane pilot and had been questioned by prohibition agents about a liquor ring which flew contraband into the United States from Canada. Both men were held at the state's attorney's office. Held with them were a Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nolan and two unidentified persons.

Those seized in Pittsburgh were Frank Quigley, 54, Daniel Kelly, 39, and Robert Sexton, 31, all Chicagoans. Inspector Walter Monaghan of the Pittsburgh police said they were members of the Parker-Morgan gang, and that they had passed a small amount of the checks.

Lacked Buyers.

Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police said attempts had been made to distribute all the checks in Chicago. Leaders of the ring had planned to sell them at 20 cents on the dollar to underworld "passers." A lack of buyers for the entire batch and apprehension against concentrating the money in one city, forced the gang leaders to send out groups to cash checks simultaneously in all sections of the country.

State's attorney's police indicated that they learned of the attempt to pass all the checks in Chicago from an underworld tipster. Warnings were then broadcast to other cities.

Generator Breaks As Doomed Killer Waits For Current

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. — (INS) — Seated and being strapped into the electric chair, John W. Vaughn of San Antonio, a doomed murderer, was saved for a week today when the generator supplying the current broke down.

Also snatched from death, was Jonnie Banks, negro, scheduled to be executed next. A third convict, Selanes Canedo of San Antonio, sentenced to die today for having murdered a man, had been granted a 30-day reprieve late yesterday.

Vaughn was making a long statement to the roomful of witnesses as guards were adjusting the straps. The generator was running at full speed. Suddenly the hum of the machine dwindled and stopped. A hurried telephone call was made to Governor James V. Allred in Austin. He granted a stay of execution for a week for Vaughn and Banks.

Up and Down THE STREET

A number of relief clients who have small garden plots are eager to "get going" with spade and hoe, but they haven't the money for seeds and plants, according to Earl A. Nist, city relief director. He suggested that there probably are a lot of old potatoes in Mansfield cellars that would make good seed potatoes, or perhaps farmers in this vicinity have more than they can use. A call to the relief office, Canal 1834, will bring a city truck or car for potatoes, garden seeds or plants, Nist said.

All that mail on the desk of Safety-Service Director Tracy Styert yesterday wasn't city business. It was made up of birthday cards, letters and greetings from friends who remembered that yesterday the city official had a birthday. And being an official instead of a movie star he doesn't mind the public knowing that it was the 54th. The cards displayed a lot of ingenuity, ranging from a little one encased in a succession of envelopes to big ones that you just keep unfolding until there is a big sheet of them.

EMBARRASSING

Papers for President on World Phosphate Situation Lost.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — A question was put to President Roosevelt at his press conference today which he ruefully admitted was most embarrassing.

A reporter inquired when the president planned to send to congress his promised message on the world phosphate situation.

Mr. Roosevelt confessed that somewhere between the White House and the department of agriculture the papers on that subject had been lost.

He said there was every prospect of their recovery, however.

FIGHTS MOVE ON NAVY BILL

Swanson Opposing Congress Proposal on Peace-Time Operation of Fleet.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Navy Claude A. Swanson opposed congressional efforts today to define the peace-time policy of the navy or to "hamper" naval operations with a theoretical line of defense.

In an exchange of letters with Sen. Homer T. Bone, D., Wash., whose amendment to the pending billion-dollar naval expansion bill would limit the area of peace-time operations, Swanson asserted that such a plan would "hamper the free use of the fleet."

Bone claimed that his amendment was not a "pacifist" attempt to "hamstring" the navy, but an effort to "put a chain on our watchdog so we won't run off policing the world for American capital investments along the Yangtze."

"It is the opinion of the navy department," Swanson wrote to Bone, "that a definition such as embodied in the proposed amendment cannot be drafted so as to make it free from misinterpretation, misapprehension and inhibitions in carrying out the general purposes of national defense.

"Such a definition would proceed beyond the essence of national policy as to general intentions and purposes, and would seriously infringe upon executive authority and responsibility concerning the methods to be employed in carrying out existing national policy."

STUDY PLAN TO PUT 150,000 RAILROADERS BACK TO WORK

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON— Congressional experts, preparing "stop-gap" legislation to aid the ailing railroad industry, considered today a proposal for putting 150,000 furloughed railroad workers back to work at government expense.

Chairman Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., of the senate interstate commerce committee, announced that he is preparing temporary legislation for passage at this session and indicated that he might favor proposals for co-operation between the federal government and railway management to give furloughed workers work on maintenance projects.

Under the plan being considered, he said, the government would pay labor costs, probably through the works progress administration, and the carriers would pay for materials. Long deferred and needed maintenance has been one of the railroads' major problems.

Wheeler said that a long-range rehabilitation program would be deferred until the next congress, but that the temporary program probably will include:

1. Authorization of loans totaling $300,000,000 for new equipment and easing of present loan restrictions by the reconstruction finance corporation and the interstate commerce commission.

2. Easing of statutory restrictions by reorganizations and establishment of a threeman re-organization court to speed procedure.

3. Payment of full fare by government traffic on land-grant roads, exempting movement of troops and supplies during wartime.

4. Possible regulation of water transportation by the interstate commerce commission.

Federal subsidies for railroads were definitely eliminated at the close of a three-hour conference with management and labor representatives.

Indication of immediate legislative aid offered little substantial relief for the railroads and left undecided whether rail executives will attempt to cut the wages of their 930,000 employes.

STROKE FATAL

OHIO BELL ACTS TO TERMINATE 13-YEAR FIGHT

Utilities Commission to Pass on Settlement to End Suit for $18,000,000.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The Ohio Bell Telephone company agreed today to pay $7,250,000 to settle a rate case that has dragged through the courts for more than 13 years, and Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy said he would take the agreement to the state utilities commission for approval during the day.

There was no immediate estimate on the benefits to be received by some 600,000 affected subscribers in 44 Ohio communities. Barring new legal snares, refunds probably will be started by September, Duffy said. He added that until payments began, interest would accumulate on the compromise figure, increasing it to $7,500,000.

Estimate Million Loss.

The settlement figure was about $1,000,000 less than Duffy said that the state could have obtained had the court fight continued and the state won eventually. Utility experts told him, he said, that the most the subscribers could have received would have been $8,300,000.

In 1935, the utilities commission ordered Ohio Bell to hand back $11,800,000, which it claimed represented excessive profits from 1925 to 1932. With interest, that now would amount to more than $18,000,000. The state won in the Ohio supreme court, but the United States supreme court, to which Ohio Bell appealed, ruled the commission did not explore adequately property valuations and remanded the case for rehearing.

"In recommending this agreement to the commission for its approval, I am convinced that I am acting in the best interests of the public," Duffy said.

He said a few minor details remained to be worked out, but that there was agreement on the major points. He said that Randolph Eide, president of Ohio Bell, approved the settlement, but did not sign the agreement. The signers were Duffy, W. W. Metcalf and Joseph L. Heffernan, assistant attorneys general; and Karl E. Burr and Ashley Vanduzer, Ohio Bell counsel.

With both the state and utility anxious to close the case because of its terrific expense, the settlement did not come as a surprise. The utilities commission scheduled a rehearing of the case two weeks ago, but it ended with the announcement that the case would be decided on the records available.

Industrialist Threatens Moving Plants From Michigan.

DETROIT—(INS)—Officers of the strike-bound Bohn Aluminum and Brass company today threatened to move their $10,000,000 industry from Michigan and predicted labor wars will make Detroit "a forgotten city."

Vice President and General Manager P. A. Markey of the Bohn company, whose eight plants were shut down by a strike of the CIO's United Automobile Workers union yesterday, said:

"I will arrange a meeting of the board of directors of our company and recommend we get out of Michigan despite our $10,000,000 investment in this state.

"Industry can no longer operate in Michigan. Detroit will become a forgotten city, mark my words."

FAIR ENOUGH!

Arguments Against Plan To Tax Federal Salaries Filled With Fallacies.

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—We will now hear once again the fine-haired constitutional reason why it would be dangerous to our liberties, to the integrity of the states, the sacred heritage of Valley Forge and the virtue of American womanhood to extend the federal income tax to the salaries of state, county and municipal employes and the state income taxes to the salaries of federal employes residing in states which have this tax.

Mr. Roosevelt himself, who is included among those who have obtained their civilization at a cut rate for many years, has openly indorsed this program. Nobody ever has offered any objection to the proposition that the great army of partial and total deadheads should be compelled to pay in proportion to their income, the same as the rest of us. As governor of New York and as a member of the legislature before that, Mr. Roosevelt was not required to pay the federal income tax on his public pay. As president, at a high salary, plus furnish, he has been exempt from the New York state tax, which is a honey that would have cost him about $7,500 a year these last six years.

However, it must be said that Mr. Roosevelt has now taken the stand against the Annie Oakley privilege inherent in public office. He gets a star on his report card for that, but only a silver star, not a gold one, because the idea never occurred to him that he, too, had been thumbing his way at the expense of his fellow citizens until he made his crack about taxes being the price that we pay for civilization and about some people's inclination to ride half fare and was brought to a sudden realization that, for much of his adult life, he had been riding his thumb himself.

In opposition to the president's current proposal it is argued that to tax public salaries, drawn out of the public kitty and derived from the taxes of the rest of us, would be to diminish those salaries and impose a federal tax on the functions of the states and a state tax on the agencies of the federal government.

By the same argument, the income tax levied on a citizen in private employment, could be regarded as a tax on that citizen's employer.

That is all there is to the objection. It goes back to a supreme court decision in 1819, long before the income tax was thought of, which held that the federal government could not tax the states and the vice versa. That principle is not involved in this proposal. It is childish to argue that a tax on a governor's salary is a tax on the state treasury from which he draws the money. If so, then a tax on John Lewis' salary of $25,000 a year is a tax on the exempt treasury of the United Mine workers and, if paid, should be refunded. If so, then a tax on Charlie Schwab's salary and bonuses is a tax on his company which can show that it has already paid all the taxes which it is subject to.

But it simply is not so, and if congress does not affirm its intention to levy on the salaries of the five million and more public employes drawing billions in pay, then the income tax is a punishment on private industry and work. The governor of New York draws $25,000 a year and husky perquisites, free of federal income tax. Another New York citizen getting $4,000 a year is taxed. The governor's $500 a week is held to be state money and therefore untaxable after it has been paid into his bank account. The citizen's $80 a week is held to be his own and therefore taxable as soon as he has received his eight $10 bills on pay night.

* * *

The public rolls, federal, state, county and municipal, are greater than those of Ford, General Motors, United States Steel and General Electric combined. They represent a large proportion of the total of employed population in the entire country and at salaries fairly comparable to those of private industry. The immunity means that private industry and private employment are paying the dues for an element of parasitic moochers, most of whom are inferior to private employes and took to the public pay rolls only because they were incapable of holding comparable jobs on honest competitive terms.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The most refreshing item to break Hollywood's current preview famine came not from the local sound stages but from abroad—a British film called "To the Victor."

A welcome novelty after Hollywood's long parade of nuthouse comedy and backstage musicals, "To the Victor" is a picture of outdoor freshness and tonic in effect. It's the story of two sheep dogs, Owd Bob and Black Wull, the latter a killer owned by bantam, sly, pugnacious old Adam McAdam, whose daughter falls in love with Davie Moore, the owner of Owd Bob. Will Fyffe, late of the English vaudeville halls, takes truculent, tippling McAdam and makes of him a character portrait you won't soon forget, even if at times his heavy Scotch burr is unintelligible to the American ear.

After an opening discouraging because of the unfamiliar speech, "To the Victor" swings into full stride with a tense, beautifully directed sequence at the sheep dogs' field contest, in which finally Owd Bob and Black Wull are championship contenders. And believe it, here is suspense and thrill.

Out of the contest comes the drama which gives Fyffe a character actor's holiday and any audience a pleasant time indeed. The striking scenery is beautifully photographed, and Robert Stevenson's direction is in the main effective. John Loder and Margaret Lockwood are the romantic leads, with Graham Moffatt and Moore Marriott chief in support.

Hollywood's offerings for the week were routine. The studios last month emptied their film shelves as far as possible to prepare for the tax assessor, and subsequently production generally slumped.

"Nurse From Brooklyn" came from Universal as a fairly exciting cops-and-robbers thriller even though its plot is of the sort that telegraphs ahead its future intent. Sally Eilers and Paul Kelly are the romantic leads, Miss Eilers, the nurse, and Kelly, the cop she thinks has killed her kid brother, Maurice Murphy. All the time Sally's sweetheart, Larry Blake, is the real murderer, as the audience knows but Sally doesn't. There's the usual conflict and the usual chase, the usual grim fight to the death at the end—but "Nurse From Brooklyn" is better than average of its kind. This is due partly to original "touches" given by Director S. Sylvan Simon, partly to Roy Chanslor's screen play, and largely to the earnest trouping of the players.

"Rascals" is the new Jane Withers number. It's about a little girl who trucks around the country, gypsy-fashion, with a gang of happy-go-luckies recognizable as Borrah Minnevitch and his harmonica-players. Jane plays matchmaker for Robert Wilcox and Rochelle Hudson, the rich girl who loses her memory in an accident and falls in with the gang.

Although it's an outdoor story, the natural note is struck only in that sequence wherein Jane, Minnevitch and company perform in a night club. Which perhaps best describes the triteness of the rest, and indicates that Jane is the real wonder-child of Hollywood.

MANSFIELD TEACHERS HAVE DINNER PARTY

J. E. Bohn Guest Speaker Before Primary Class Instructors; Miss Reed and Miss Hartmann Provide Musical Program.

MANSFIELD primary teachers had a dinner meeting last night at the Women's Club over which W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, presided. J. E. Bohn, superintendent of Ashland schools, was guest speaker.

Musical selections were offered by Miss Thelma Reed and Miss Helen Hartmann. Miss Reed played "Nocturne In F Sharp" by Chopin and "Prelude" by Respighi. "Se-tu m'ami se sospiri" by Pergolesi and "When I Am Laid In Earth" by Purcell were Miss Hartmann's numbers. She was accompanied by Miss Mary Jane Curtiss. A reading entitled "Us" was given by Miss Mae Longsdorf.

In his talk, Mr. Bohn urged all teachers to use discrimination in their choice of teaching theories and methods. He also stressed the fact that no teaching method can be effective unless the teacher maintains classroom control.

The arrangements committee included the Misses Barbara Smythe, Longsdorf, Mary Ward, Curtiss, Lucille Beattie, Reba Robinson, Harriet Roth, Anne Verba, Frances Bein and Irene Hutzelman. Miss Dora McLeod was chairman.

Install Mrs. Bishop President of Group

The Richland County Auxiliary to the CIO installed Mrs. Andrew Bishop as president last night following announcement of the coming departure of Mrs. A. K. Ricks, former president, for Alabama. The retiring officer was given a gift by the organization.

Mrs. William Reed's team, which lost in the membership drive served a luncheon. Plans for a card party were discussed and Mrs. Mary Somers and Mrs. Lowell Morgan were among those named to the entertainment committee. The next meeting will be held at the hall on Park street, May 5.

RE-INKING RIBBONS

In case of emergency, typewriter ribbons can be re-inked at home by brushing them wth a solution made from a lead of an indelible pencil dissolved in equal parts of pure grain alcohol and glycerine. Glycerine, you know, is extensively used in the manufacture of various inks.

Fete Mrs. Weil at Kitchen Shower

A miscellaneous kitchen shower was given last night by the sisters and mother of Mrs. Robert Weil, the former Miss Helen Litzler. The hostesses were Mrs. Nick Litzler, Mrs. Tony Eichoff and Miss Sue Litzler and the affair was held at Mrs. Eichoff's Lincoln Heights home.

Bridge was played and the prize was won by Miss Naomi Crider. The prize was given to the recent bride and the hostesses presented Mrs. Weil with a gift of glassware.

Mrs. Weil will soon be honored at a luncheon-bridge at the Mansfield-Leland hotel to be given by the Misses Crider, Gertrude McClure and Irene Oaks.

Mrs. Beard Hostess to Circle For Luncheon

A 1 o'clock luncheon was served to nine members and three guests of the Chautauqua circle yesterday at the home of Mrs. Charles Beard, Andover road. The table was centered with a birthday cake honoring Mrs. E. R. Hart.

The guests were Mrs. E. R. Adams, Mrs. Walter Becker and Miss Sybil Scott. A business session was held after the luncheon with Mrs. A. H. Weikert, president, in charge.

Bunco was then played and prizes were won by Mrs. A. J. McHugh, Mrs. Marie Lomax and Mrs. Becker. The next meeting will be with Mrs. William Yoha, Bowman street, May 12.

Young Woman Does Not Attract Boys

By VIRGINIA LEE

WAITING SALLY is the type of girl who doesn't attract boy friends, and she feels bad about it. She is asked for a date once in a while, but not very often, and the boys who ask never come back for more.

As far as she can see she is just as attractive as her girl friends and she dresses nicely. She doesn't paint, smoke or drink, and thinks maybe those facts are against her. She is 21, graduating from college this year, and wonders if she is going to have to spend all the rest of her life teaching.

"Is there something radically wrong with me? Do I lack sex appeal? Is that why boys don't ask me for dates?" she asks pathetically. "What can I do about it?"

The fact that you do not paint, smoke or drink has nothing to do with your lack of popularity, my dear. Put that out of your mind. Boys like girls who are attractive looking, but not necessarily artificially beautiful. Most men prefer their girls to be non-smokers and drinkers even when they call them "flat tires" when they do not do those things. You'll hear them boasting, "My girl doesn 't smoke or drink."

Too Much Thought On Self?

No, you are all right there. Maybe you think too much about the effect you are making on the men and not enough on just being a good pal and listener, interested in everything the boys have to tell you Are you ill at ease when with boys? If they do not feel comfortable when with you they won't come back.

You remember James A Barrie's words about charm, in "What Every Woman Knows." I probably am not quoting it word for word, but he says charm is a kind of bloom on a woman. If she has it it doesn't matter much what else she has. Some have charm for all; most have charm for one, but the few have charm for none.

You evidently have charm for some, and I imagine when you are a little older and more poised you will have charm for the one if not for many.

And one more word, if you have to teach school all your life, get as much pleasure as possible out of that occupation. It is a noble one. A friend of mine who has taught for years spent some time with me recently, and she made me feel that teaching the "young idea to shoot" was the only vocation really worth while. She loved her children and tried so hard to understand the individual youngsters and to steer them into the right paths and to develop their talents that it was inspiring to hear her.

Salt should not be added to water in which delicate green vegetables are cooked until they are almost done. To preserve color, greens should be cooked in an uncovered pan.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

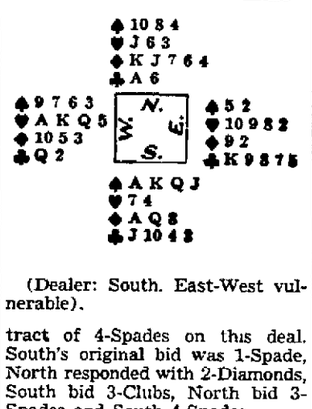
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN IMPORTANT PLAY

One of the simplest, yet most valuable, safety plays of the experts—whoever they are—has for its purpose the protection of a four-trump holding when there are three or less in the dummy It consists of refusing to ruff some early lead with the four-trump holding and instead waiting for a further lead which can be trumped in the other hand. In this way the declarer preserves his ability to run four rounds of trumps and therefore protect himself against a bad break.

North and South reached a contract of 4-Spades on this deal. South's original bid was 1-Spade, North responded with 2-Diamonds, South bid 3-Clubs, North bid 3-Spades and South 4-Spades.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable).

The hearts K and Q were cashed by West, who continued with the heart A. South made the mistake of ruffing this with the spade J If the trumps had been split three-three in the opponents' hands, the play would not have mattered, but South should not have banked on that.

Instead of ruffing the third heart, he should have discarded a club, as it was a loser in any event. The diamonds provided for only two discards. Played in that manner, the contract would have been made, instead of being set one.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

What is South's best play for 3-No Trump after the lead of the heart 4?

Exercise, New Clothes Go Together

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Just because you are a 20th century woman, don't let your dizzy life make a map of your face. You may not have the quiet and serenity of your mother's day, but you've got plenty to keep you interested and young, so don't let your face fall down on you.

Face creams and oils will not really remove wrinkles, but they are grand precautionary measures. And even after lines have formed they will soften the skin and really effect some improvement. It's a smart move, however, to use a cream or oil and also take a few facial exercises.

Here's an easy exercise for those downward worry lines that show up from your nose to your mouth. Fill your mouth with air, and puff hard against the inside of your cheeks and upper lip. Keep your lips slightly open and release the air in enthusiastic little puffs, exactly as if you were playing a horn.

Exercise For Neck, Chin.

Try this one if you are afraid of losing those youthful contours around the throat, and if you are haunted with the dread of a double chin. Tilt your head back. Then open your mouth wide and slowly, with perfect control, like a slow motion movie, close your mouth by pulling up the lower jaw.

Another swell exercise for your neck and chin is: Rotate your head on your shoulders, describing an imaginary circle in the air. At the same time chew in an exaggerated way. You can actually feel the muscles toning up.

Of course these little routines won't do a bit of good if they are done whenever you happen to think of it. Like all heplful exercises, they have to be done daily.

After your nightly face cleansing always stroke a good lubricating cream or oil into the parts of your face that have lines or wrinkles. Massage your lubricant in with an upward outward motion, and if possible leave it on over night. You'll really be well rewarded for the trouble you have taken when you see what a difference this facial care will make in your face and neck. It's swell youth insurance.

Here's an idea that is pretty obvious when you think of it, but which is really desperately important if you want to avoid lines and wrinkles. Try not to frown when you read or sew; don't squint in the sun, and most of all don't let your whole face get set in lines of solemnity or discontent when you are alone. It's so easy when working alone to go around with your mouth sagging at the corners.

Take a few seconds off every once in a while. Look in the mirror. If that's what has happened, try whistling while you work. We'll guarantee Snow White will have nothing on you.

A spoonful of salted whipped cream added to hot cream of mushroom soup greatly improves its flavor.

Because of the low, constant temperature which the electric and gas refrigerators maintain, housewives can safely keep milk and meat and cooked dishes in which they are ingredients, for as long as three or four days in the coldest part fo the food compartment.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AS MR. MILNER, the manager of the Lansfield, stood silhouetted in the doorway which I had swung open at his knock, he was the personification of unruffled ease.

But I have studied too many faces to be misled by mere surface appearance, and I knew that he was distinctly perturbed. I knew it by the etched lines at the corners of his mouth and an evasive glint in he eyes.

His voice and manner, however, were perfect, deferential, apologetic, yet with an air of assurance that said, subtly, "There can be nothing wrong that I cannot remedy."

"Ah! Mrs Graham!" he began suavely. "I am desolated that I was not in the hotel when you telephoned. It was most fortunate that Mr. Day was able to catch me where I was dining. Another minute and I should have been gone, a theater engagement, and they could not have found me before midnight. But, of course, at your message, I came directly over."

Refuses Apology.

If he expected that I would apoligize or utter any regrets for his spoiled evening, he was doomed to disappointment. In the first place, I did not believe his story in the least; in the second, I was too angry over his dereliction for ordinary amenities. But I did offer one perfunctory courtesy.

"Won't you sit down?"

"Thank you, no," he said. "Naturally, I am anxious to get back to my theater party, and while I am ready to give you all the time you wish, I am sure you will be as lenient with me as you can."

"It is not a question of leniency, Mr. Milner," I told him icily, "but of a broken promise to us. You told me that you would have the night chains put on these doors, and they are not on."

My eyes were uncompromising as I looked directly at him, but his poise was perfect. His eyes did not even change, and his voice was suavity itself.

"Oh! my dear Mrs. Graham!" he said. "There must be some misunderstanding I was sure that I told you the latches could not be put on until tomorrow."

But I was not to be placated.

Contradicts Him.

"I am sorry to contradict you," I said, "but it was the connection between Miss Whitlock's suite and ours which was to wait until tomorrow. The chains were to have been in place this afternoon."

"Then I am gravely at fault, and I am sorry," he said. "But I do not know what I can do now. You know how these mechanics are—labor unions and all that. It will be an impossibility for me to have the chains put on tonight. But they will be in place the first thing tomorrow morning. I trust that will be satisfactory, will it not?"

I took an abrupt step backward, and clenched my fingers into my palms. I seldom have been so angry in my life. I would have liked to strike the smugness from his face.

The next minute I had the satisfaction of seeing it vanish as I turned to Mary and said sharply:

"Mary Dear, will you begin packing our bags? Get Miss Whitlock's out, too, while you are about it." Then I turned back to Mr. Milner.

"Will you please see that our bill is made up to date, Mr. Milner? And will you send us three bell boys in half an hour? We shall be leaving the hotel by then."

He was like a deflated balloon, I noted with inward malicious glee. All his suavity vanished, and he actually stammered.

"But, Mrs Graham, you surely do not mean you are leaving us?" What will Mr. Veritzen say?"

"That is for you and Mr. Veritzen to determine," I rejoined. "You have my last word. Either those chains are put on immediately, or we leave at once."

Plant seeds thick enough to get a good stand. They may be thinned out later. Beets, carrots and radishes should be thinned to a few inches and large root crops to six or three inches.

Household Hints

Menu Hint.

Lamb Stew
Boiled or Mashed Potatoes
Fresh Green Salad
Buttered Cabbage
Grapefruit Pie Coffee

As the weather warms there is a great yearning for food that is fresh and tart tasting. Salads always taste better than ever before. Desserts must not be sticky and over-sweet, but have a refreshing taste. This menu supplies this need The lamb stew is the last of the leg of lamb you served for Sunday. We cut the meat off the bone, cut the fat and gristle away, put meat in leftover gravy, cover with water, add fresh carrots and onions and cook it until the vegetables are tender. Then we season it to the family taste. We can add the potatoes to the stew, but I am suggesting that we boil them separately and serve the stew gravy over them. Cut the cabbage into small pieces, boil for about five minutes in salted water, then try with fork Flavor with butter and serve hot

Today's Recipes.

GRAPEFRUIT PIE — One-half cup cornstarch, one and one-fourth cups sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one and three-fourths cups boiling water, three egg yolks, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup grapefruit juice, one teaspoon grated rind, three egg whites, six tablespoons sugar. Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Add boiling water, stirring to blend well. Cook for 15 minutes in double boiler, stirring till thick and smooth Beat egg yolks slightly and pour cornstarch mixture into them slowly, stirring constantly. Return to double boiler and cook two minutes longer. Remove from stove and add butter, grapefruit juice and rind, stirring till well blended. Cool. Pour into nine-inch baked pie shell. Make meringue of egg whites beaten stiff with powdered sugar, spread on top of pie and bake in slow oven until brown.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, April 23.

OLD AS well as new plans and undertakings are under excellent indications for progress and success on this day, according to the sidereal operations. It is likely that sudden and possibly devastating changes, with removal and change of plans, may be needed to get settled in the most harmonious and helpful situation. Land, property, old investments, perhaps insurance, gifts or inheritances, may figure in this, with young people as well as old having important consideration.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are under very encouraging auspices for growth, progress and financial stability after a radical upheaval or reorientation of environs, plans, ideas and associations. Sudden factors may arise to change plans, and these may be in connection with investments, property, wills, insurance or gifts. Young people have important place in decisions and final success.

Spry The new, purer ALL-vegetable shortening TRIPLE-CREAMED!

BANANA CREAM PIE

1 cup milk
1 cup light cream
3 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 bananas
1 baked Spry Pie Shell
2 egg whites
4 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Scald milk and cream in top of double boiler Combine flour, cornstarch, sugar and salt and mix thoroughly. Add to scalded milk and cook 15 minutes, stirring constantly The mixture should be thick and smooth. Pour over slightly beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler, and cook a few minutes longer. Cool and add vanilla.

Slice bananas thin and arrange in pie shell Pour filling over them Beat egg whites stiff, but not dry Add sugar gradually (about 1 tablespoon at a time) beating constantly. Add vanilla Pile lightly on filling Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) 15 minutes, or until firm and delicately browned

SPRY PIE SHELL

1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup Spry
3 tablespoons cold water (about)

Sift flour and salt together. Add ½ of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as corn meal Takes no time with triple-creamed Spry. Cooking experts for 281 home-making schools say it's the creamiest shortening ever Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of a navy bean (This makes your pastry flaky.) Sprinkle water, 1 tablespoon at a time, over mixture With a fork, work lightly together until a dough is formed. Roll dough ⅛-inch thick and prick with a fork Place dough in 9-inch pie plate and let relax 5 minutes Pat with ball of dough Trim pastry ½-inch larger than pan and turn back edge. Flute rim. Chill Bake in very hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes. You'll say it's the flakiest, tenderest pastry you ever ate! But remember, use Spry to be sure of best results
